

VOLUME-1
EPISODE-8
FOULPLAY & CHAOS

GUARDIANS HEADQUARTERS
EARLY MORNING

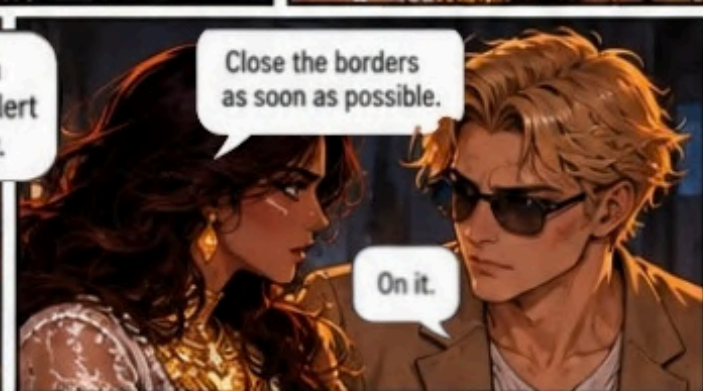

ASHTON DETENTION CENTER

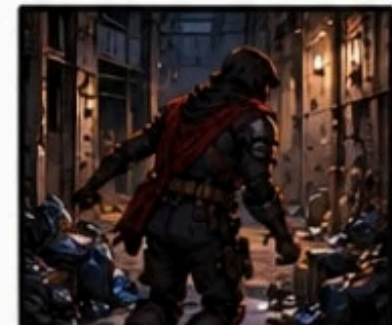

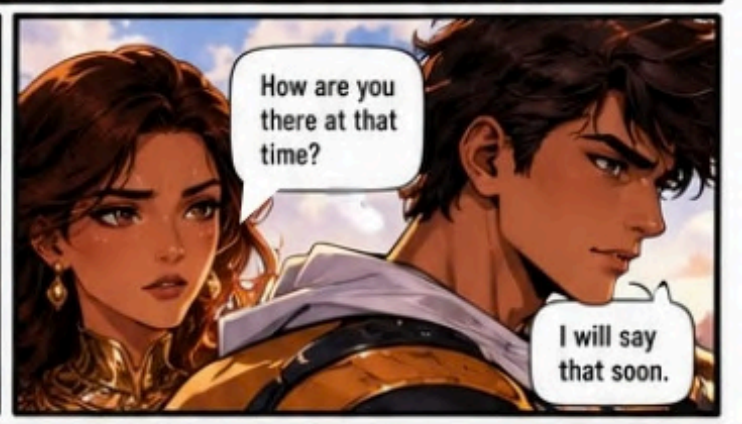

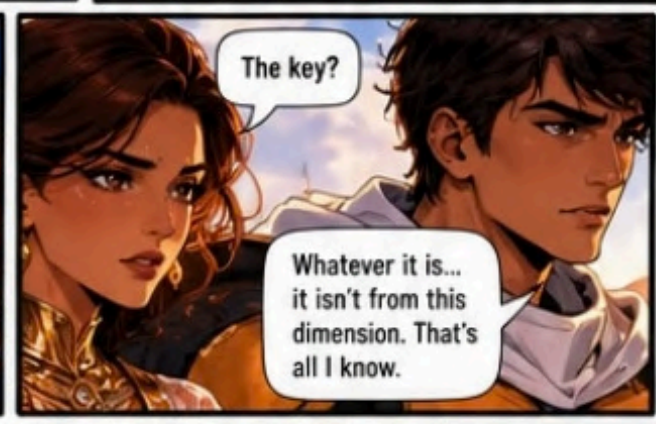

Declare an emergency alert to the city.

Close the borders as soon as possible.

On it.

All of them?

Looks like it.

DARK CITY

Wait.

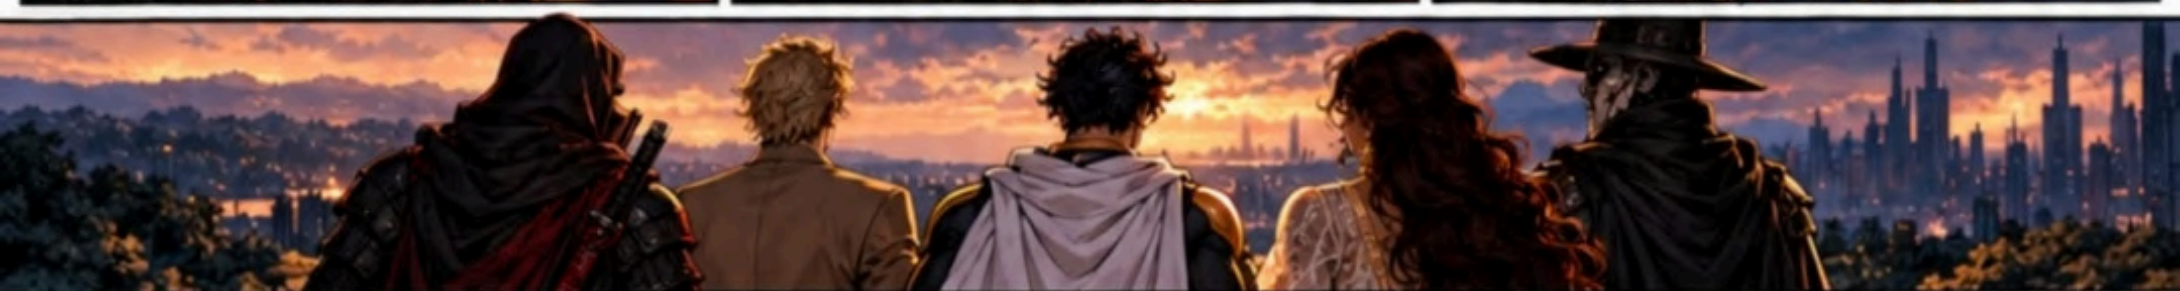

Foul Play isn't associated with Dark City.

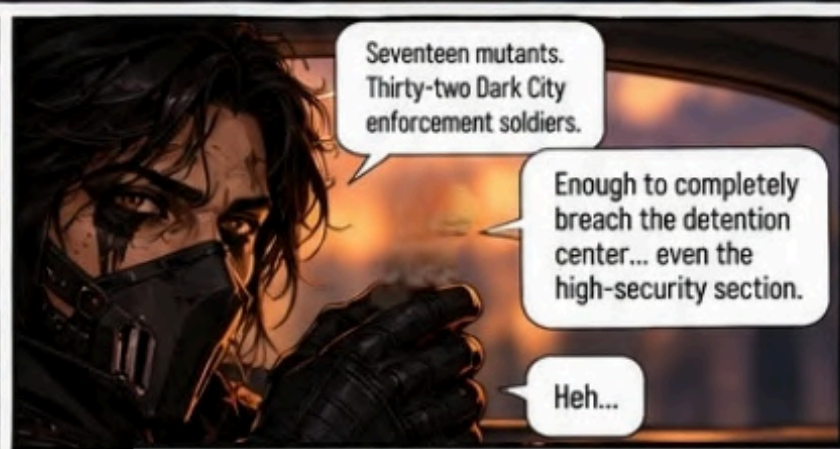

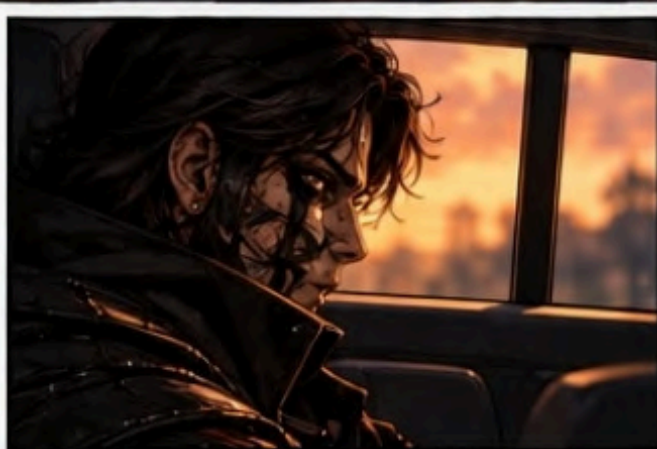

He isn't part of the Chaos Syndicate either.

So how did he end up there?

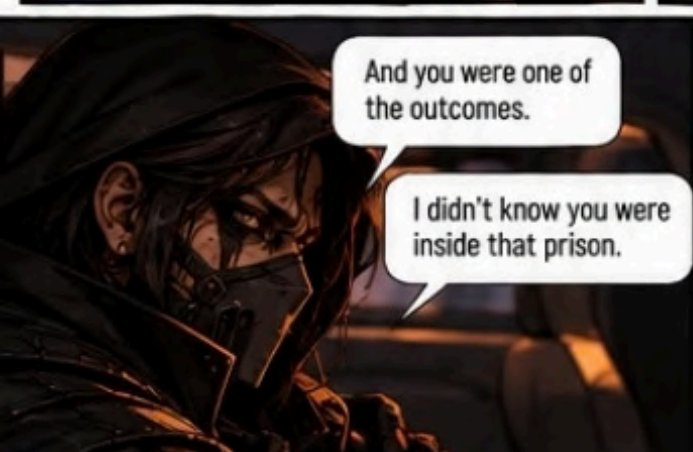

OUTSKIRTS OF ASHTON.

Seventeen mutants. Thirty-two Dark City enforcement soldiers.

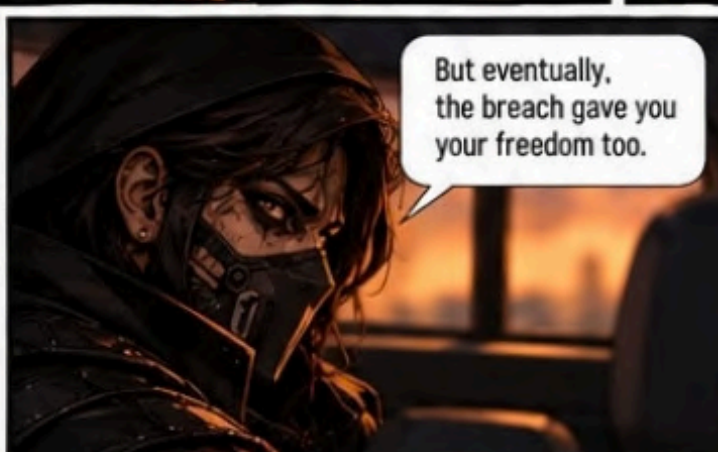

Enough to completely breach the detention center... even the high-security section.

Heh...

And you were one of the outcomes.

I didn't know you were inside that prison.

But eventually, the breach gave you your freedom too.

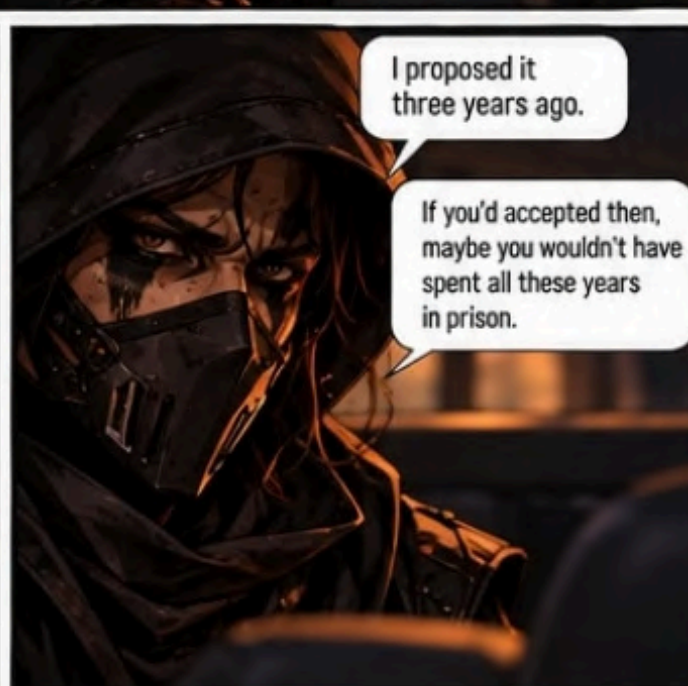

Hmm.

I would've escaped eventually... even without your army.

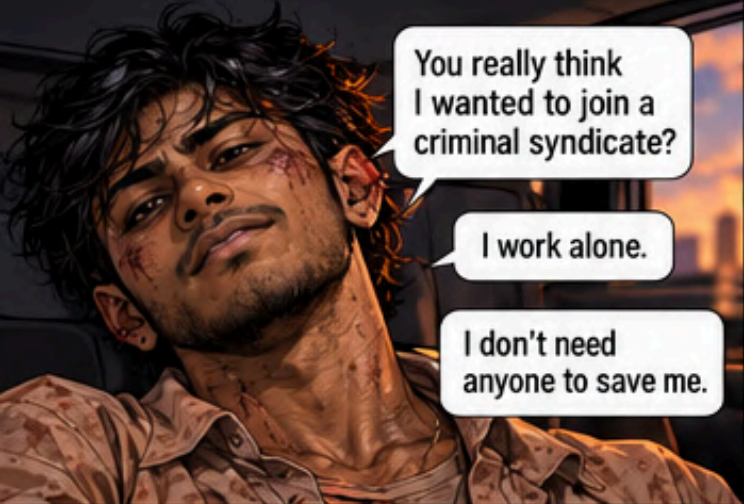

Why not join us now?

I proposed it three years ago.

If you'd accepted then, maybe you wouldn't have spent all these years in prison.

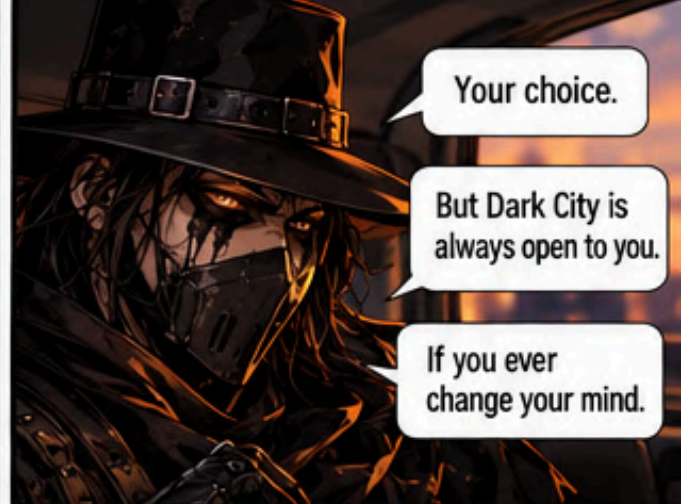

You really think I wanted to join a criminal syndicate?

I work alone.

I don't need anyone to save me.

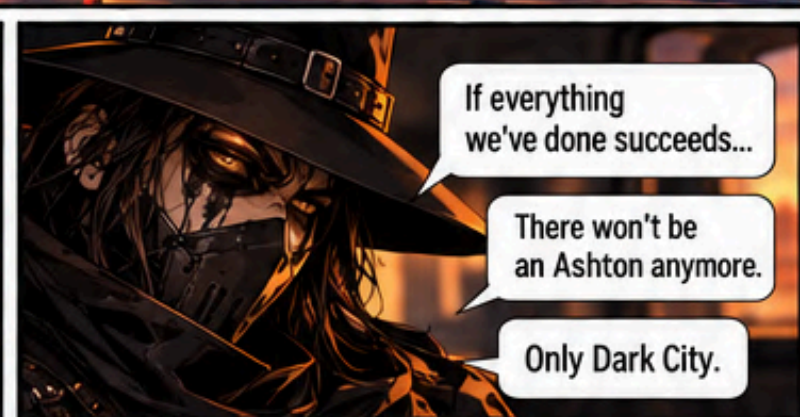

And Ashton was my city.

Your choice.

But Dark City is always open to you.

If you ever change your mind.

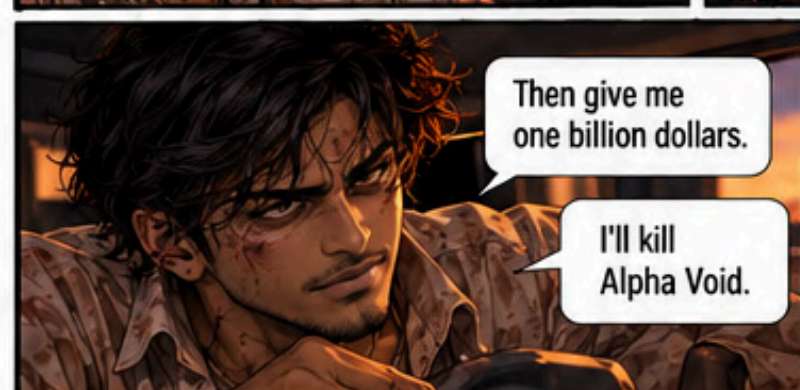

If everything we've done succeeds...

There won't be an Ashton anymore.

Only Dark City.

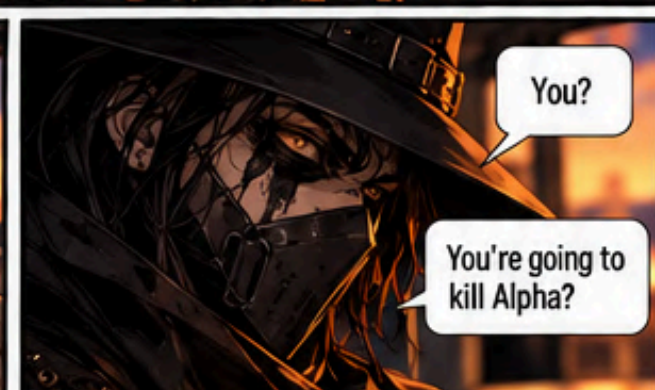

Hahahaha...

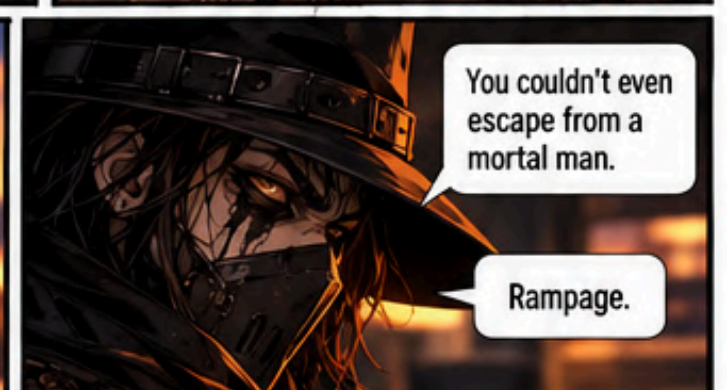

Then give me one billion dollars.

I'll kill Alpha Void.

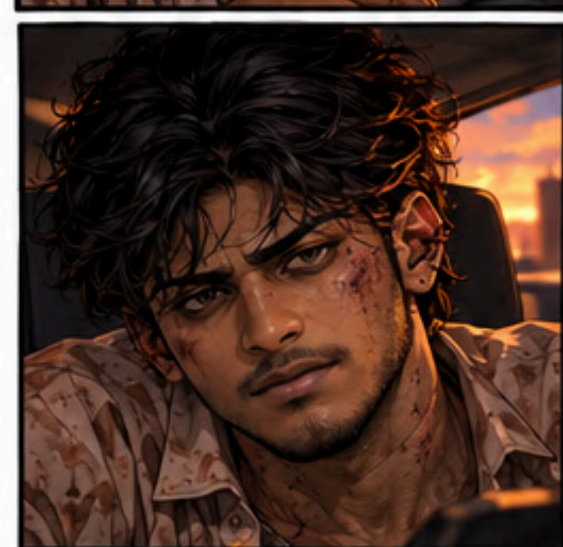

You?

You're going to kill Alpha?

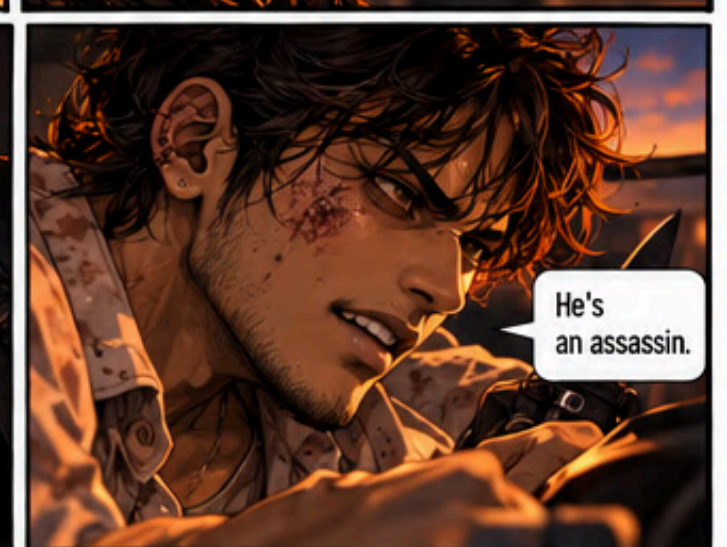

You couldn't even escape from a mortal man.

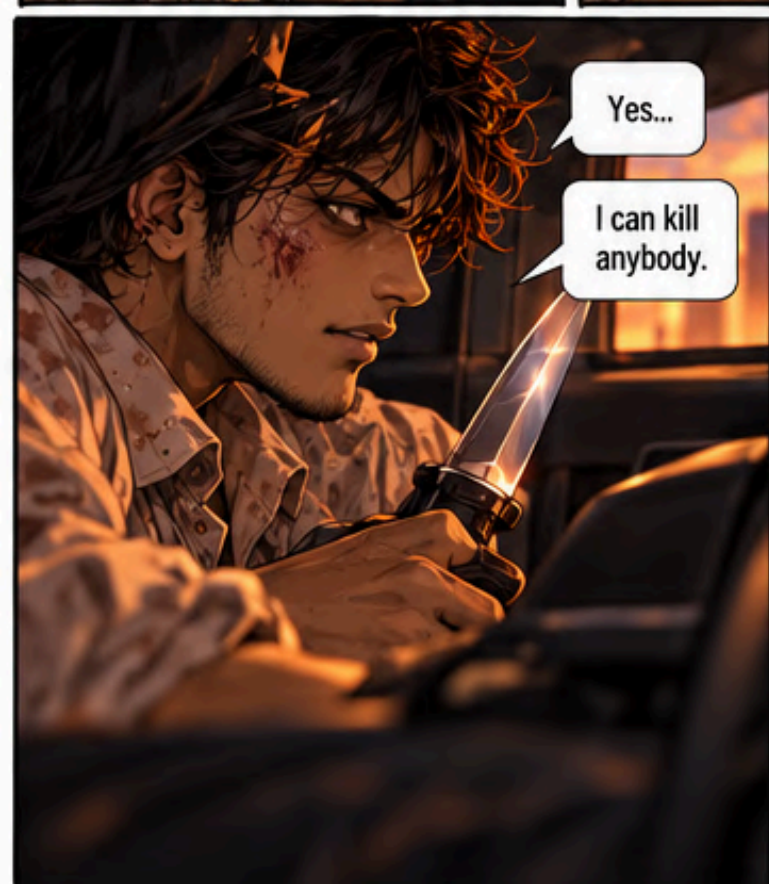

Rampage.

He isn't some mere mortal.

He's an assassin.

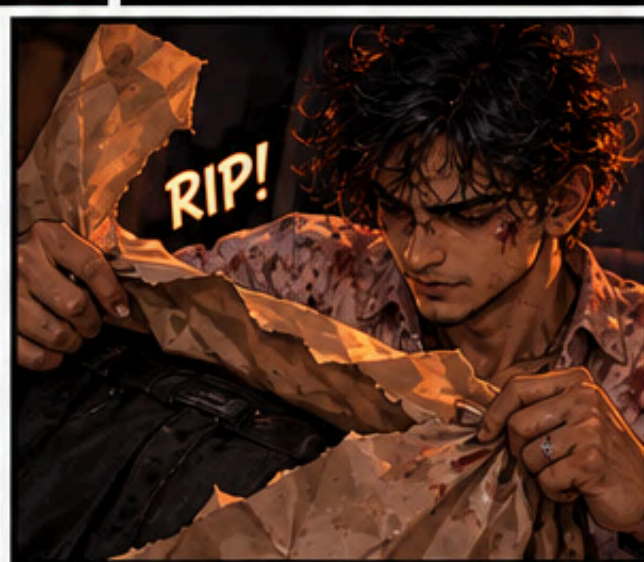

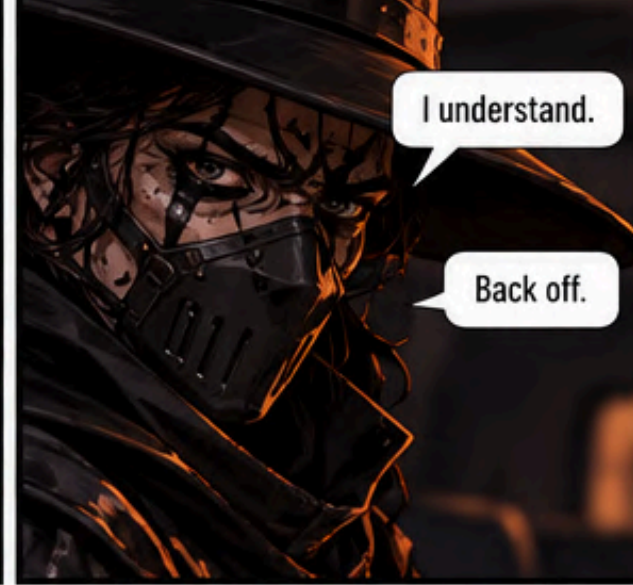

Yes...

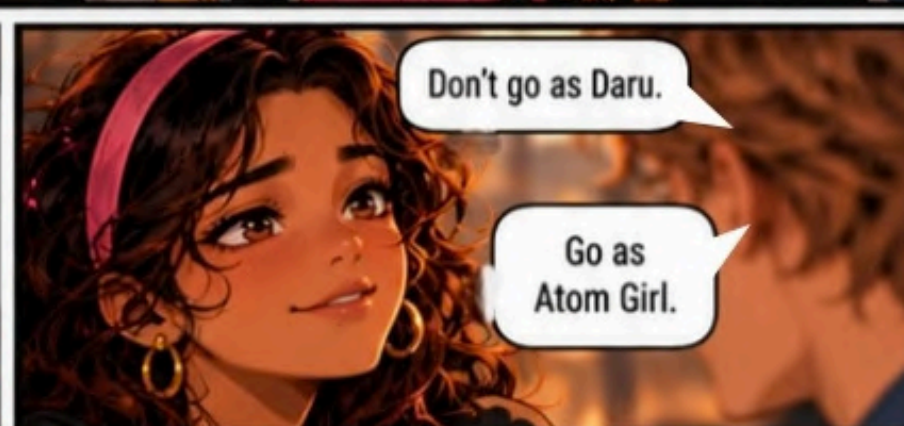

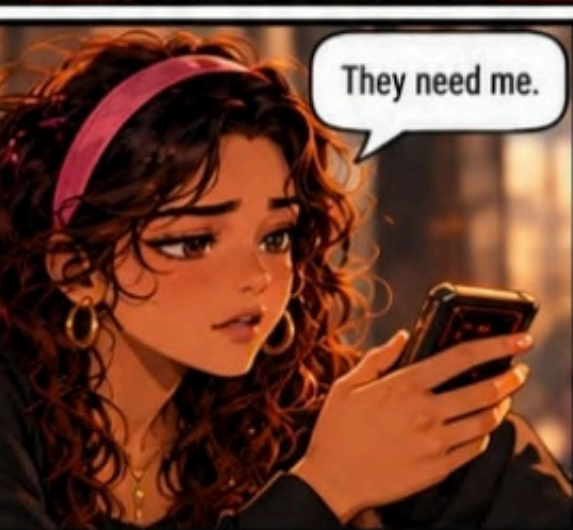

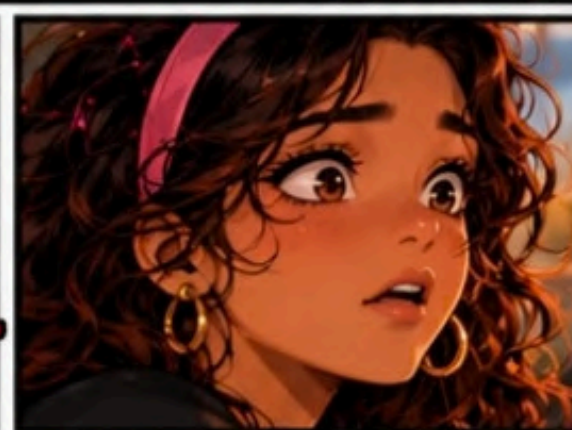

I can kill anybody.

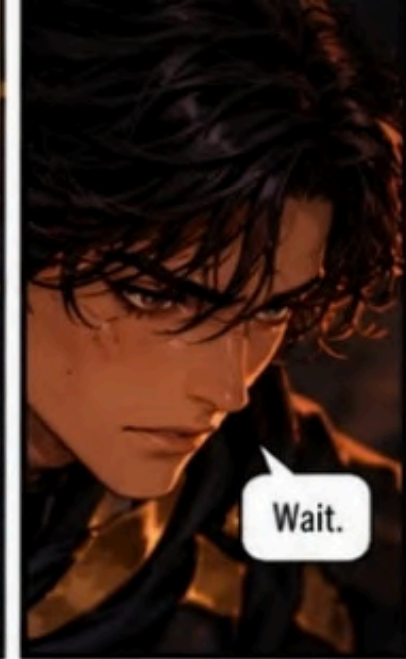

Even you.

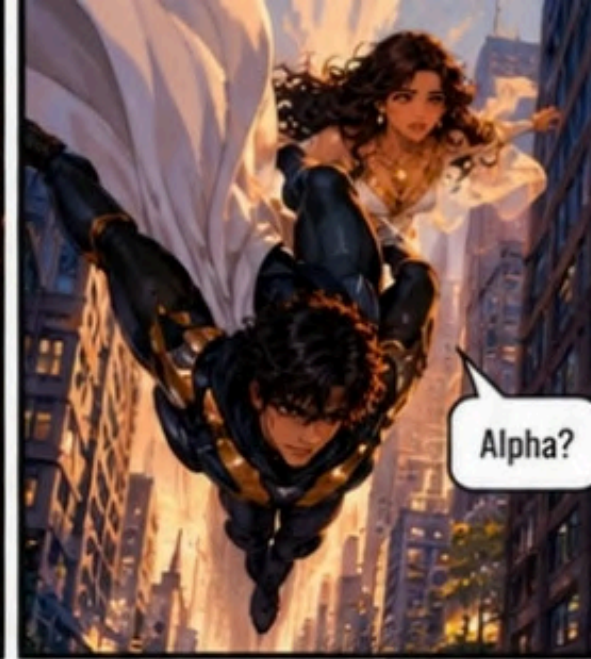

Morning.
The same party place from last night.

Wait.

Alpha?

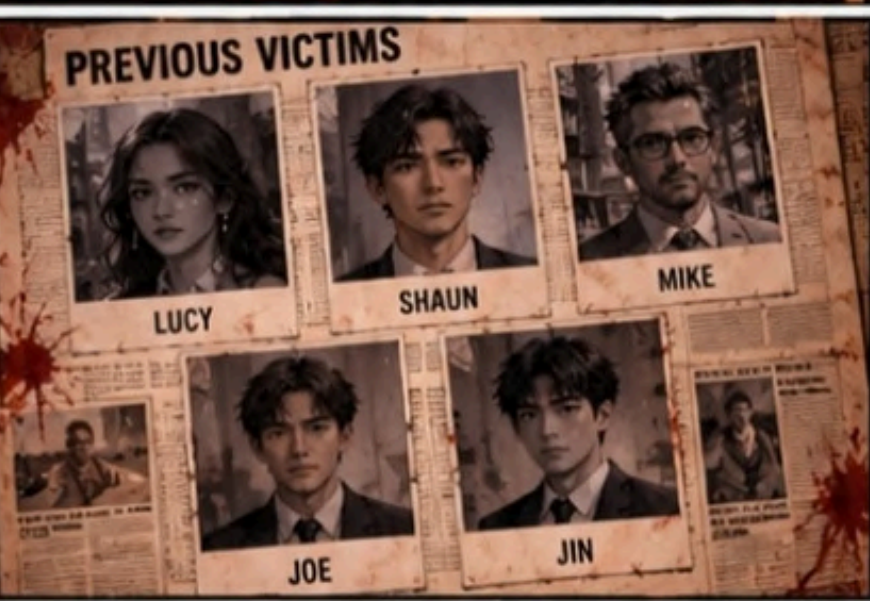

...Foul Play.

He was here all along.

Look at his old victims.

Most of them were businessmen, private council members...

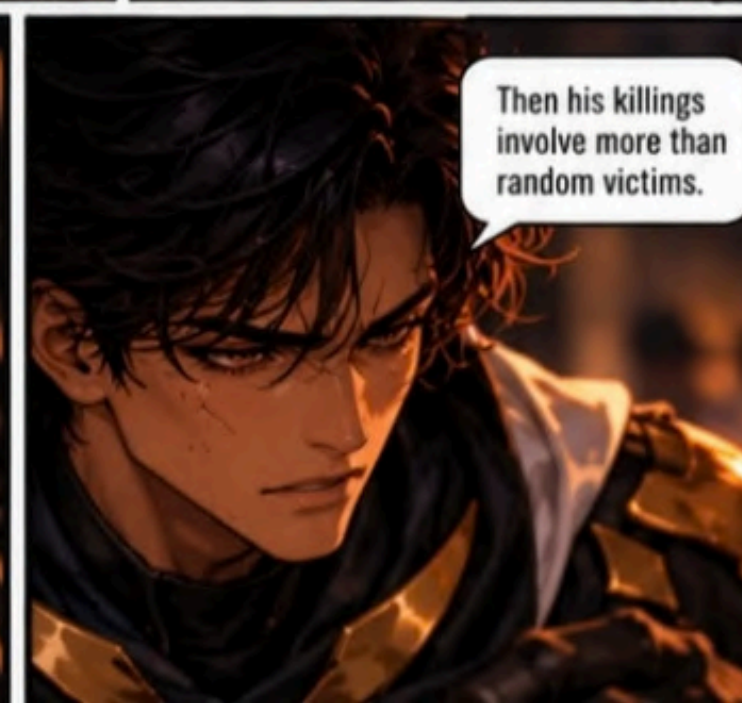

Or children of powerful families.

And this one...

Daffoe. Assistant manager at Subordinates Inc.

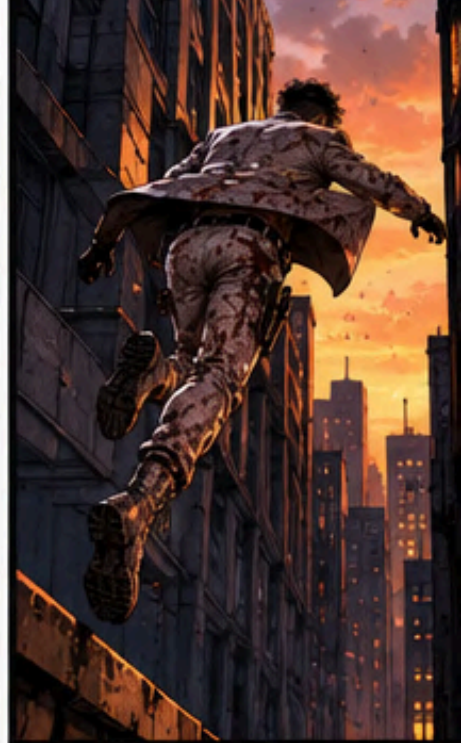

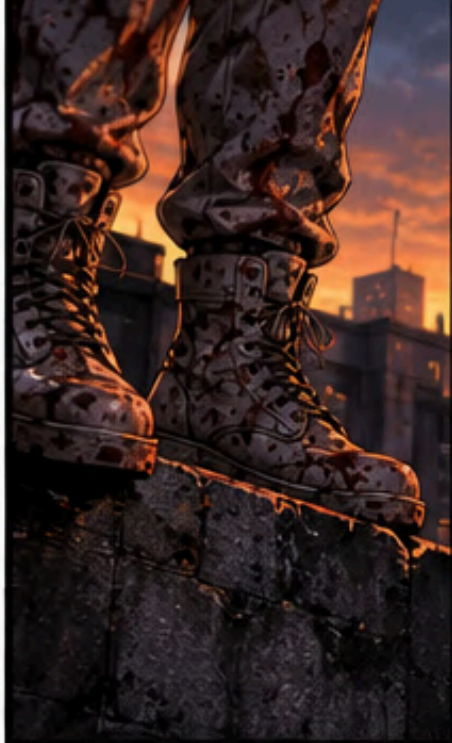

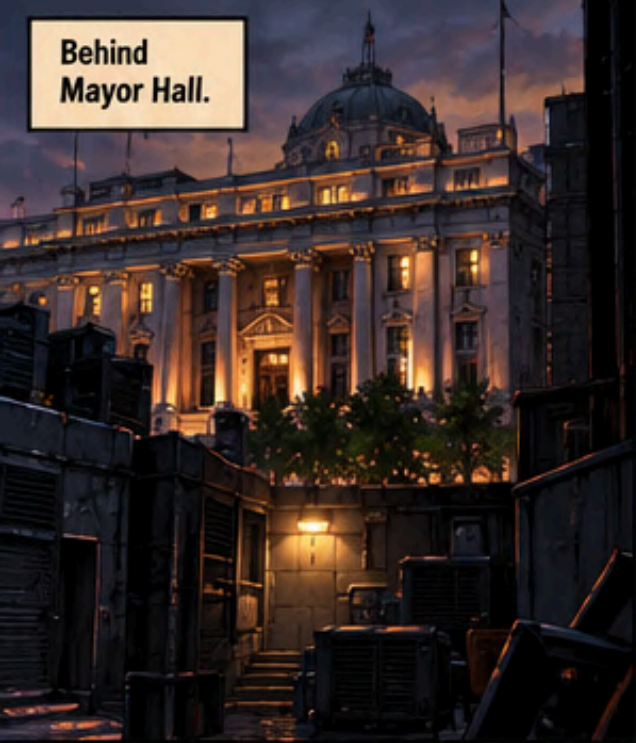

Then his killings involve more than random victims.

Not this time.

He's aiming higher.

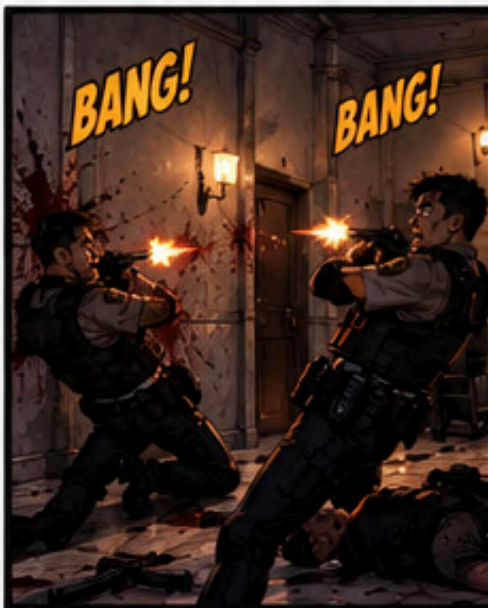

Behind
Mayor Hall.

His next target wasn't a businessman.
It was the city's highest public office.

What are you doing?

BANG!

BANG!

Who are—

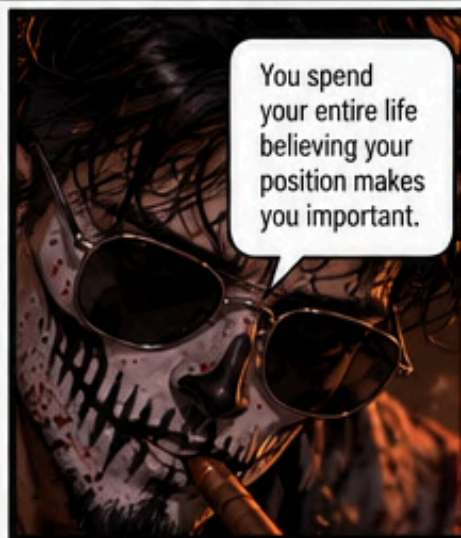

BANG!

AAAH!

You know what I love about people like you?

You spend your entire life believing your position makes you important.

But when I walk through that door...

...you're just another body.

Ashton will fumble
now, Mr. Mayor.

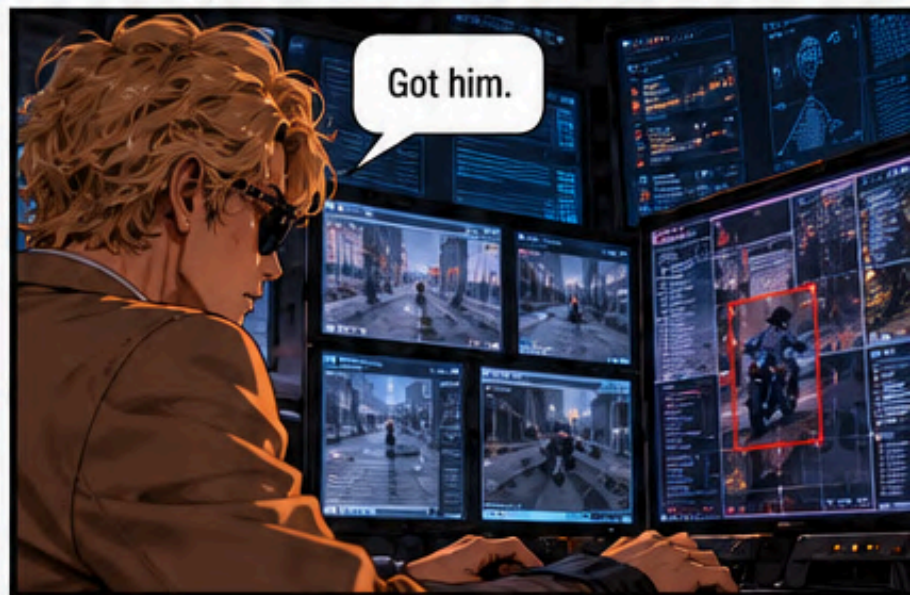

Alpha?

Where is he?

...Did..He manipulated my mind?

Got him.

He's heading toward the western outskirts.

This time, we don't let him get away.

Come on.
We need to catch him.

Sending coordinates to the team.

I promised Leo I'd bring the culprit to him.

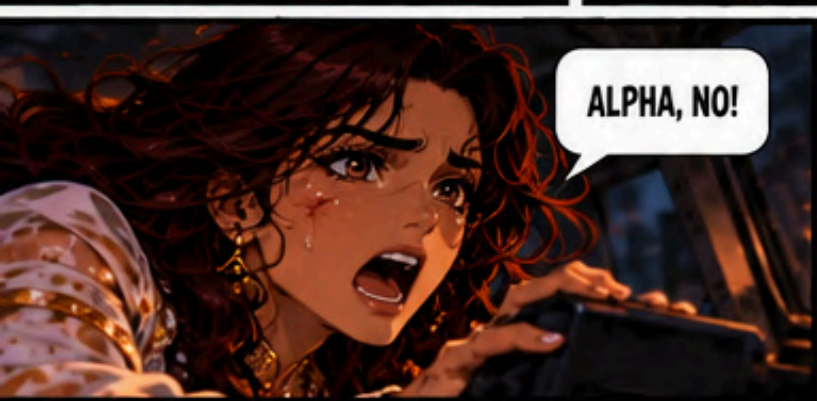

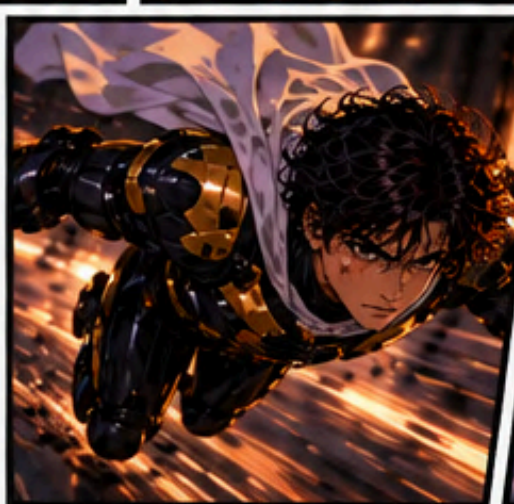

Don't tell me you're thinking to...

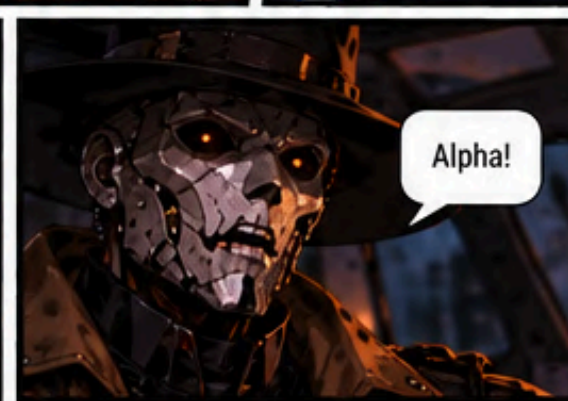

Yes.

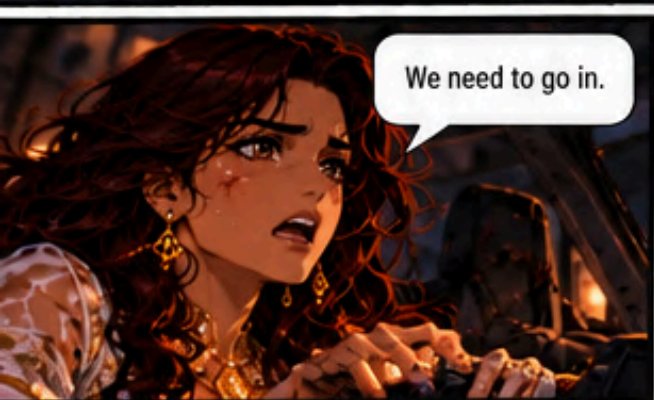

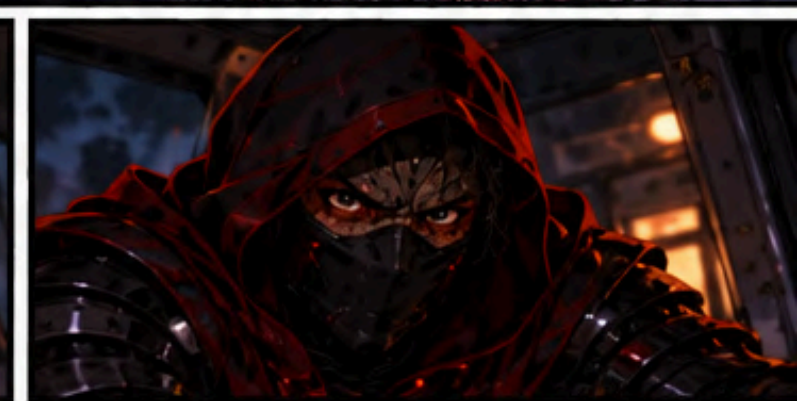

Alpha, don't—

ALPHA, NO!

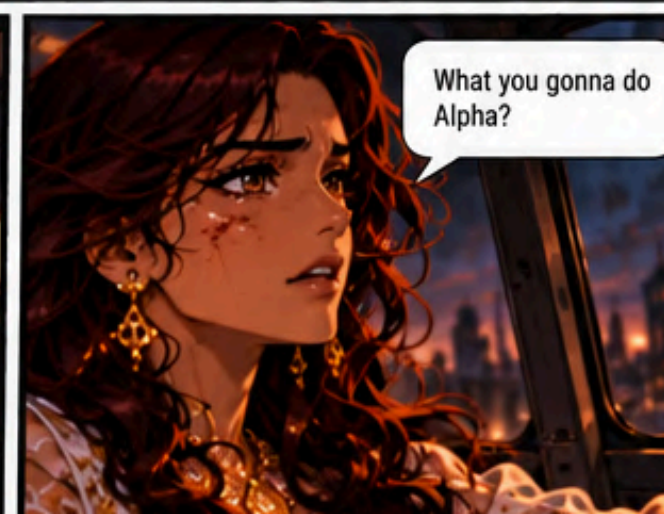

Alpha!

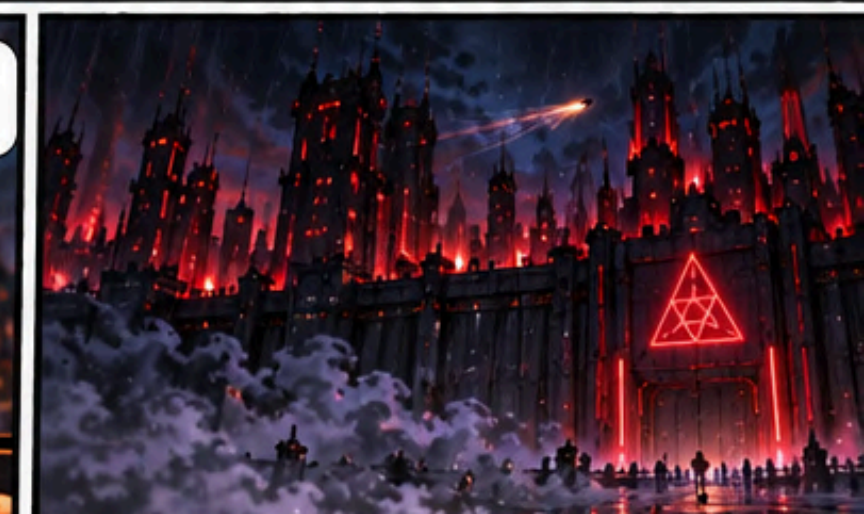

We need to go in.

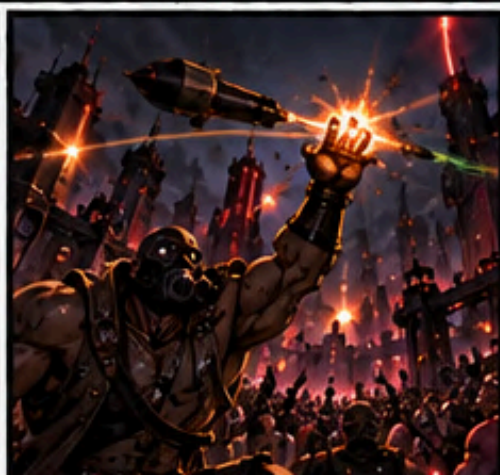

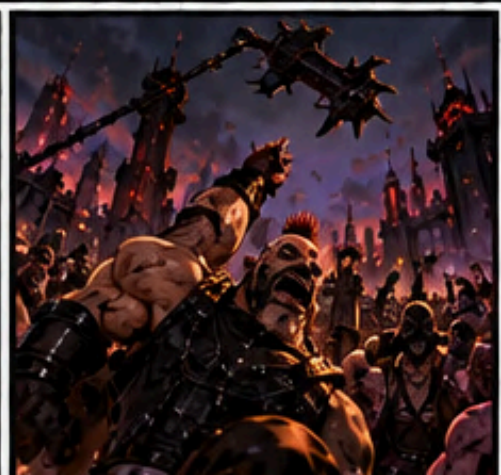

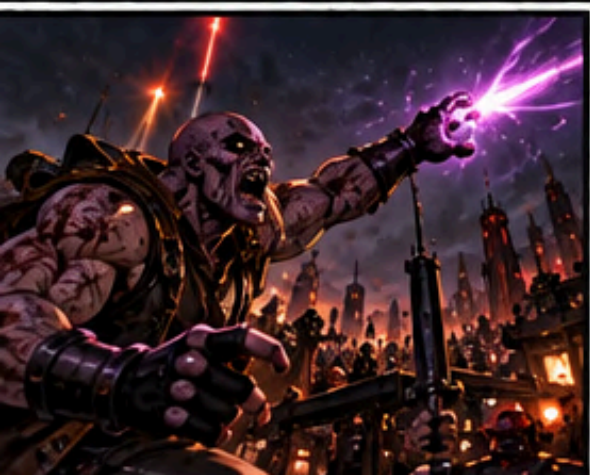

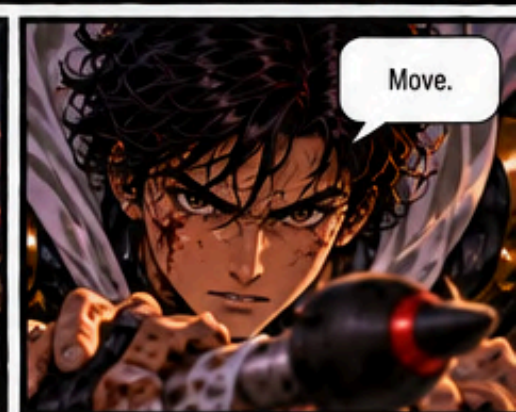

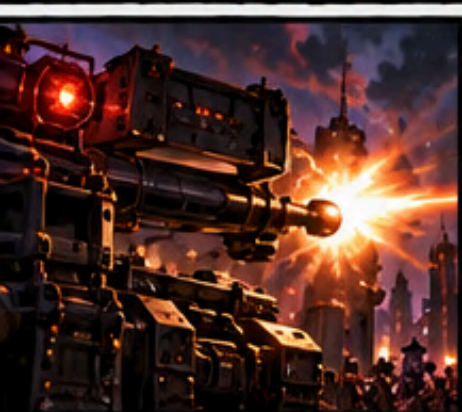

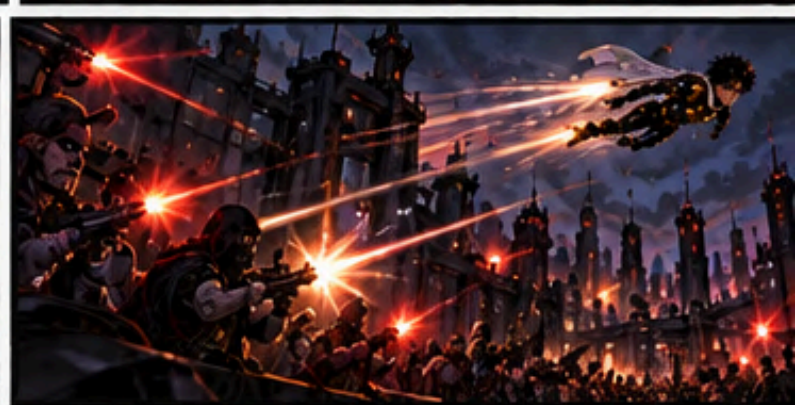

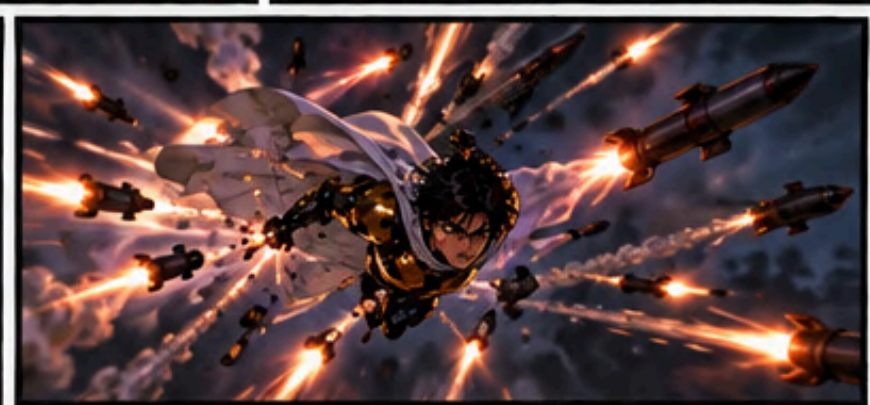

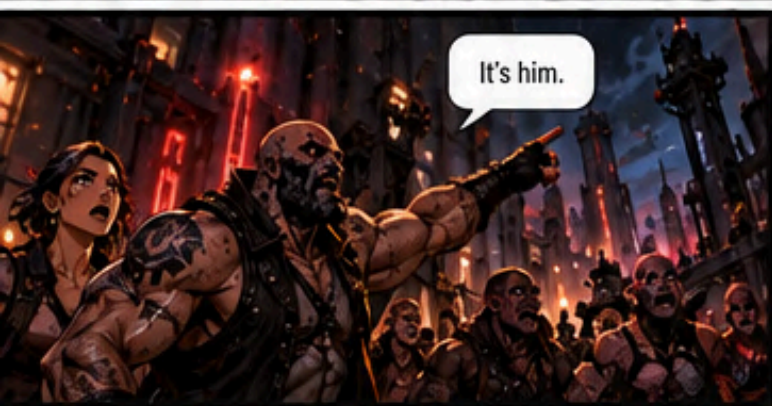

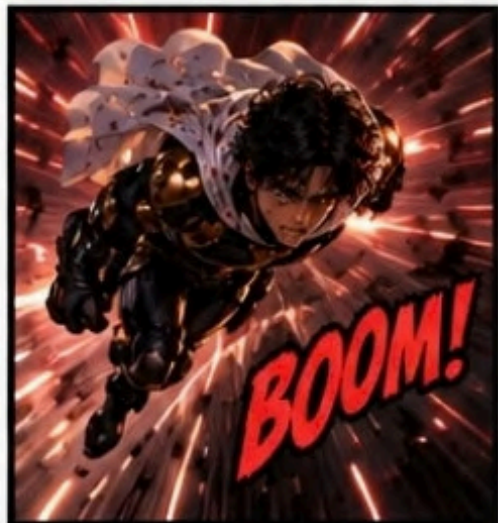

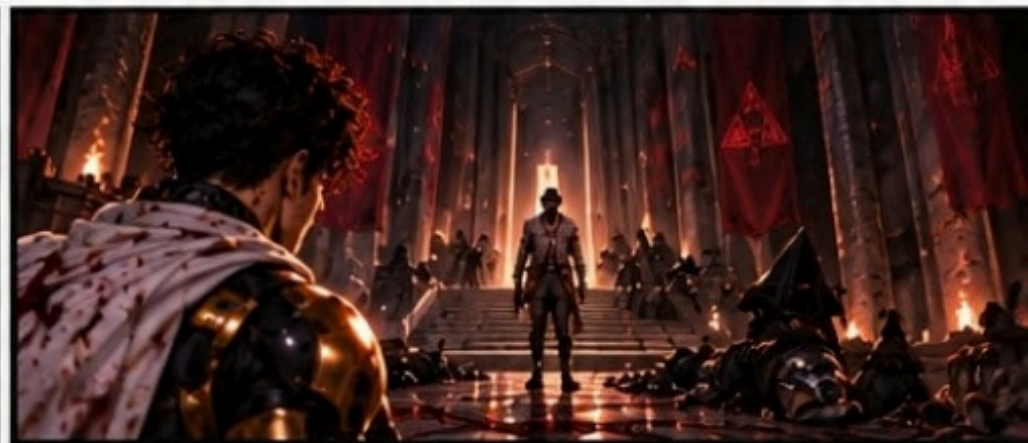

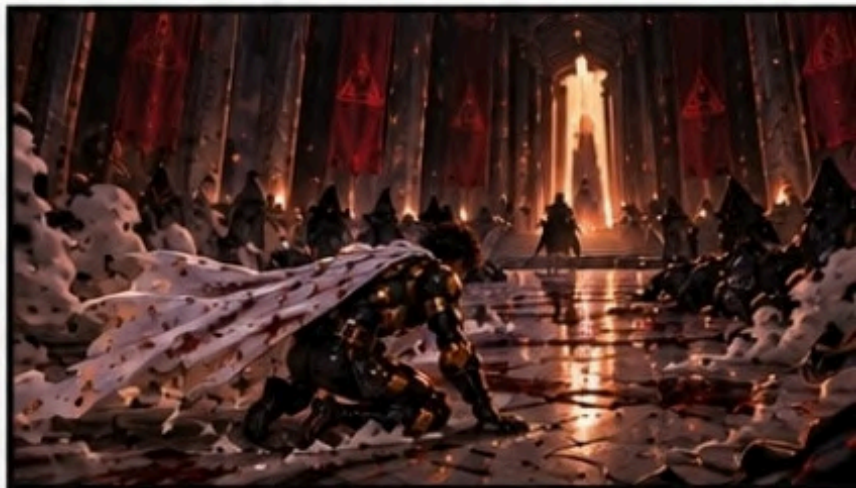

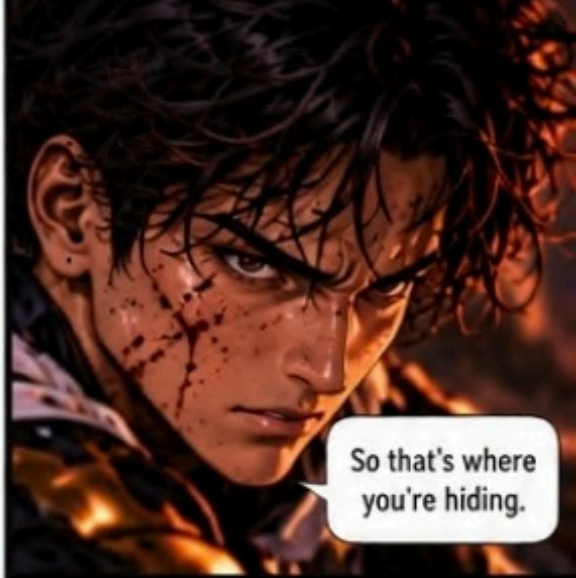

Stop.
We can't go in.

What you gonna do Alpha?

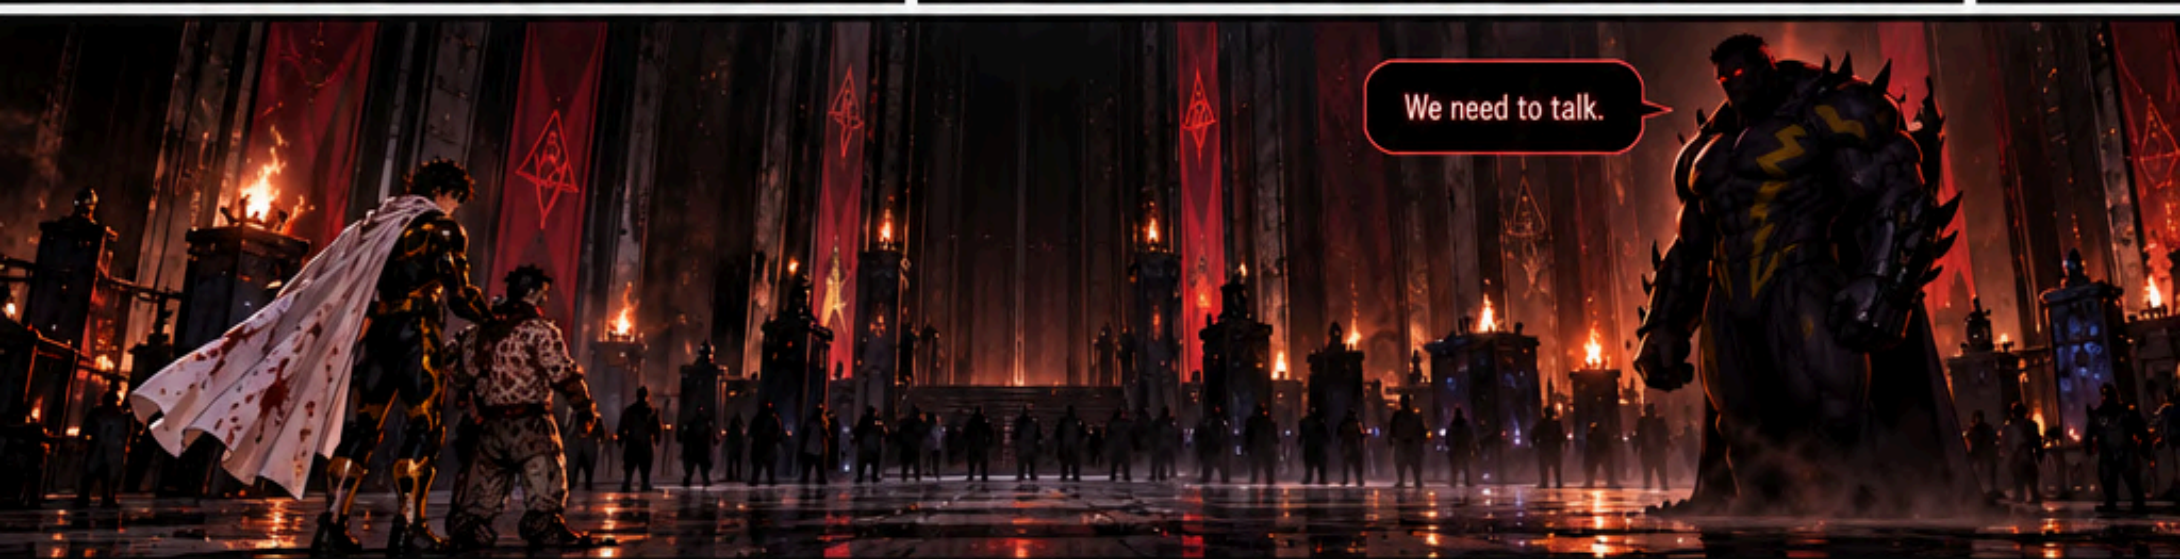

You crossed an entire city to take him.

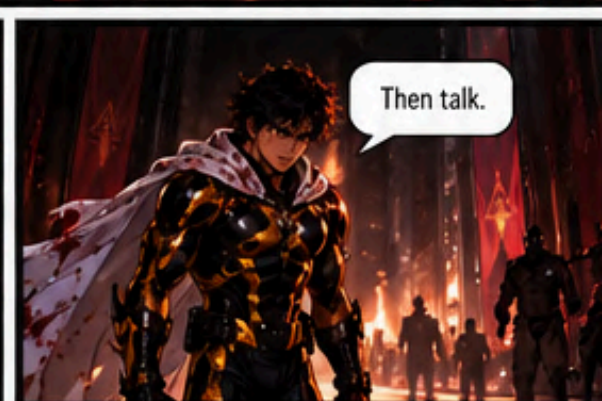

You can't leave just like that.

We need to talk.

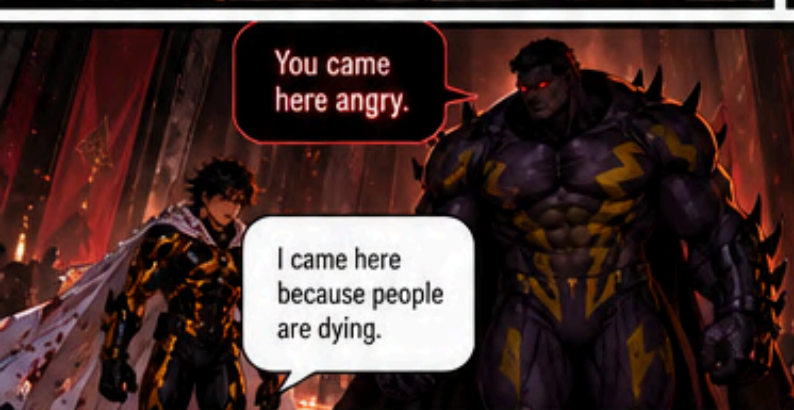

Then talk.

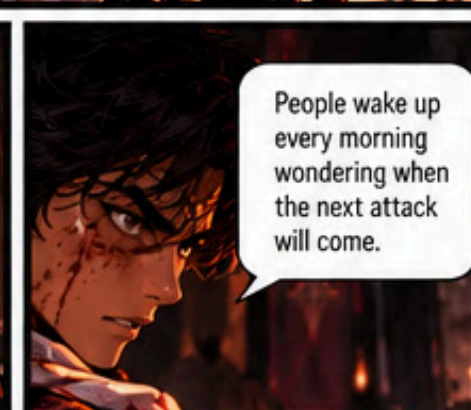

I knew you would listen.

Don't mistake patience for trust.

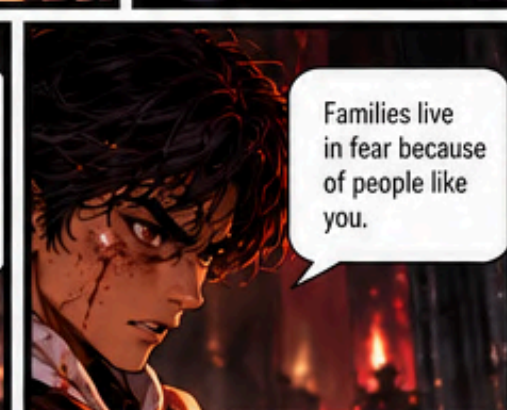

You came here angry.

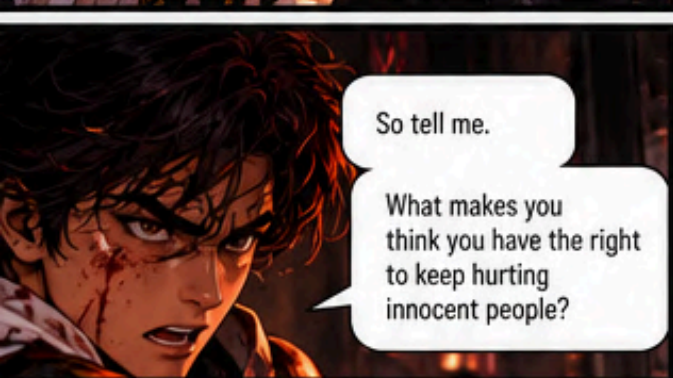

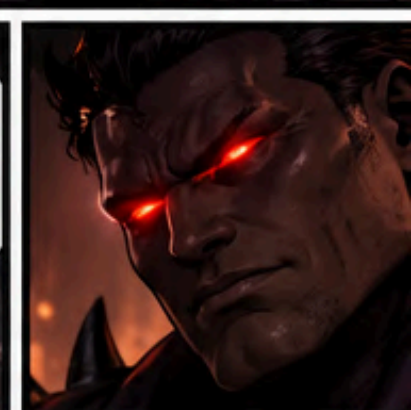

I came here because people are dying.

People wake up every morning wondering when the next attack will come.

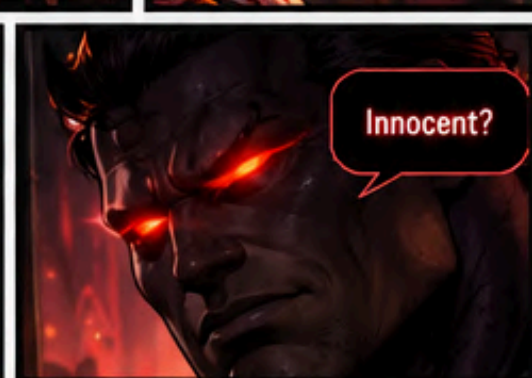

Families live in fear because of people like you.

So tell me.

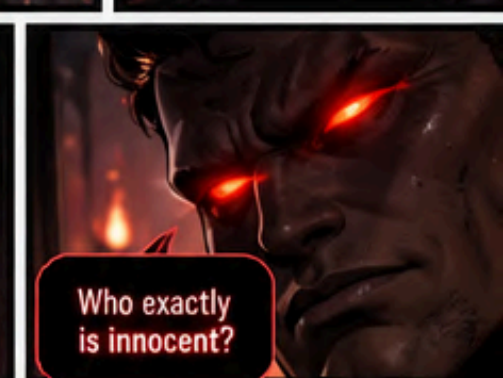

What makes you think you have the right to keep hurting innocent people?

Innocent?

Tell me, Alpha...

Who exactly is innocent?

The people outside who cheer when you save them?

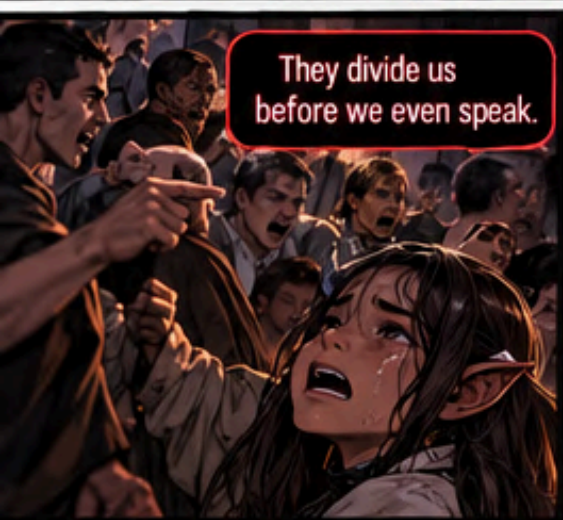

Ask them what they see when they look at us.

They don't see as neighbors.

They see us as ANIMALS.

They divide us before we even speak.

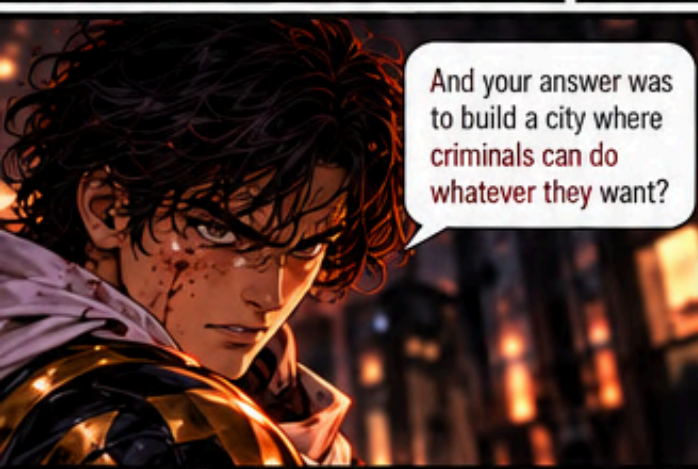

They fear what they don't understand.

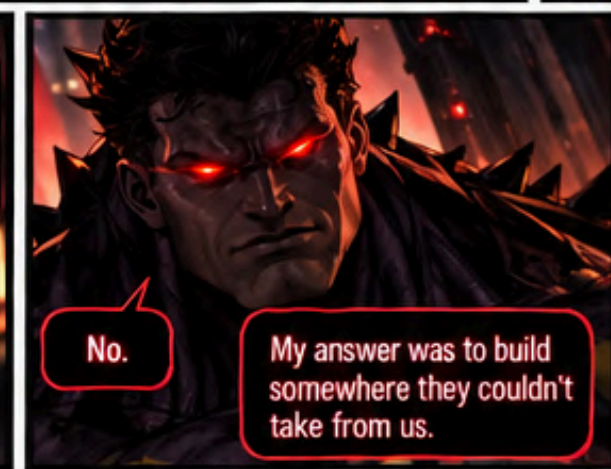

And when fear becomes law...

...people like us become criminals simply for existing.

And your answer was to build a city where criminals can do whatever they want?

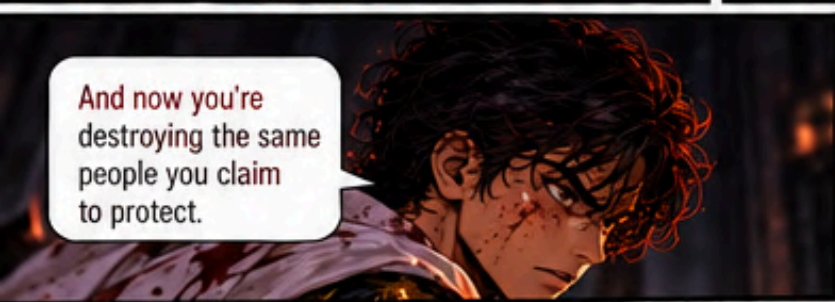

No.

My answer was to build somewhere they couldn't take from us.

Dark City wasn't created to destroy your world.

They created because your world refused to make room for ours.

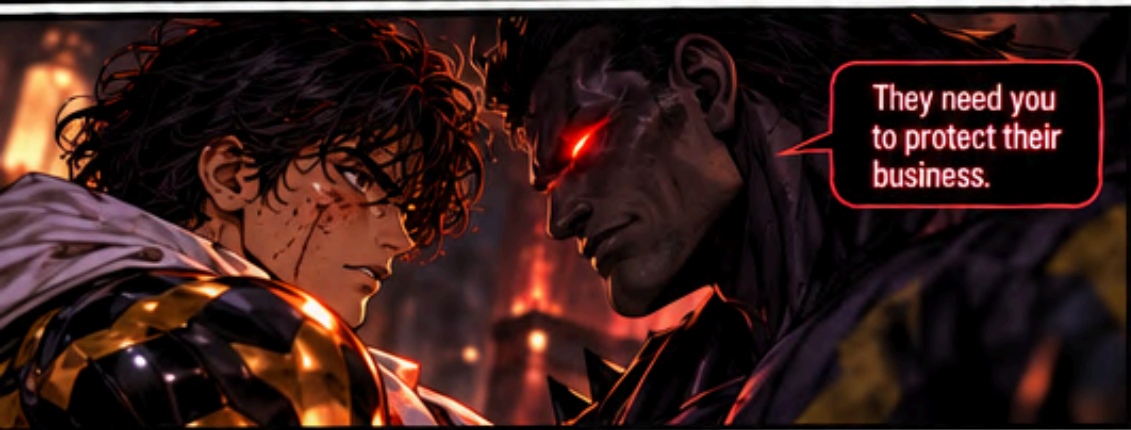

And now you're destroying the same people you claim to protect.

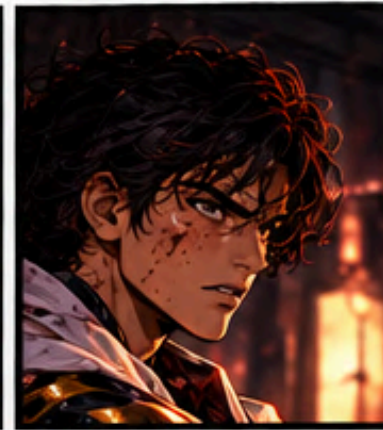

You still don't see it.

The people you work for don't need you to protect them.

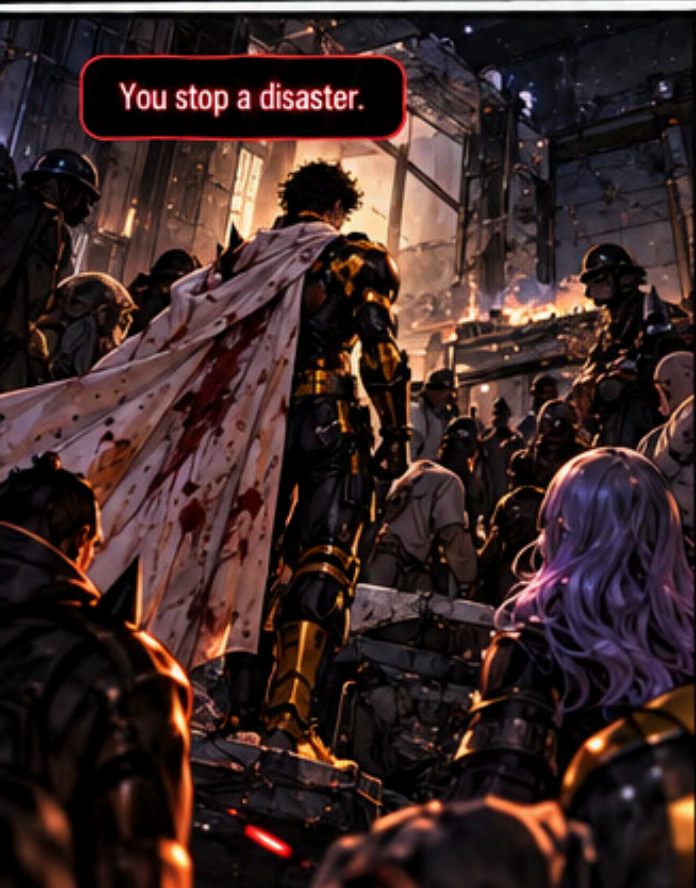

They need you to protect their business.

You save a city.

They sell the story.

You stop a disaster.

They sell security.

And the moment you stop being useful to them...

...they'll find a way to replace you.

All of this is bullshit.

Do you think Syndicate will replace there most powerful person?

A clever story to make your crimes sound necessary.

You hurt innocent people.

You terrorize cities.

And then you blame everyone else for what you became.

You think
I became this.

I built this because I already knew what the world could become.

When the first mutant was hunted...

When the first child was locked away because of what he could do...

When people started turning our existence into an experiment...

Someone had to build a place where we could survive.

That someone was me.

And Chaos Syndicate?

Chaos exists because your Syndicate created the conditions for it.

I've heard enough.

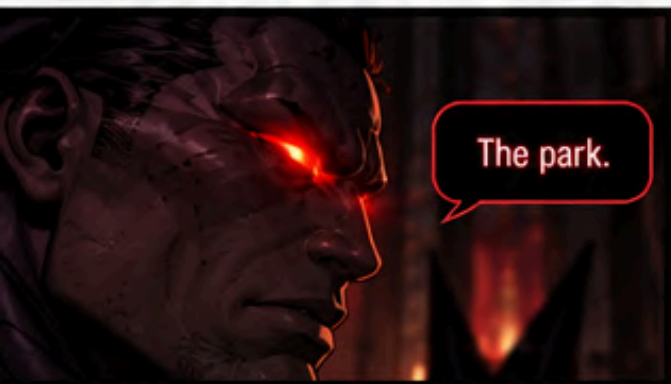

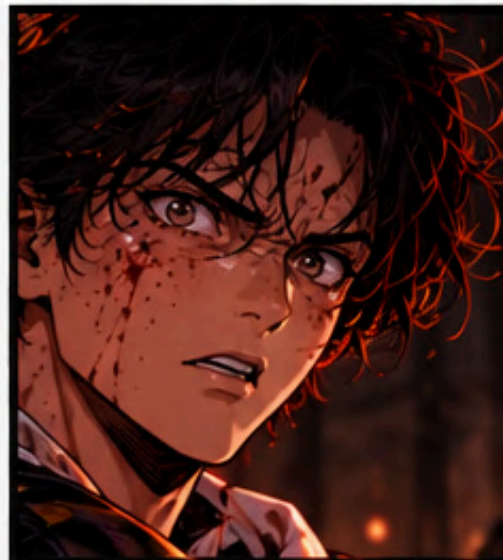

Whatever your reasons were...

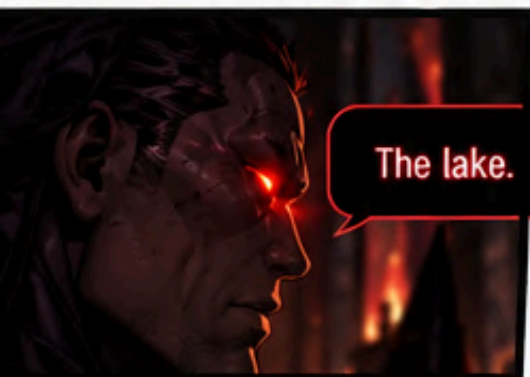

...you don't get to decide who deserves to die.

Then what do you think about your dreams?

The park.

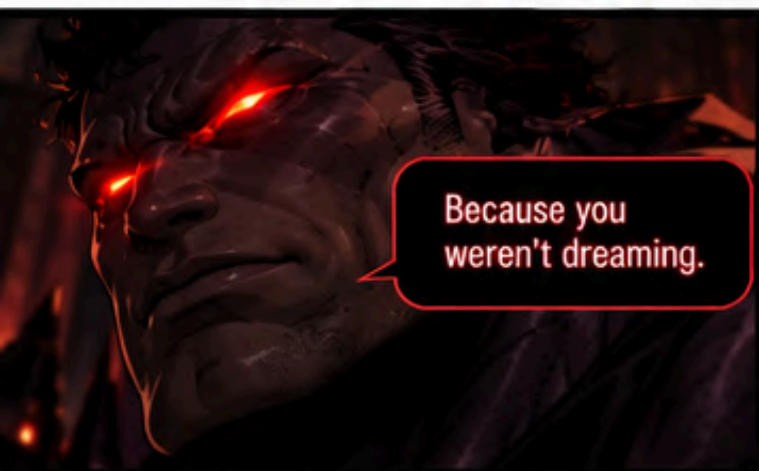

The lake.

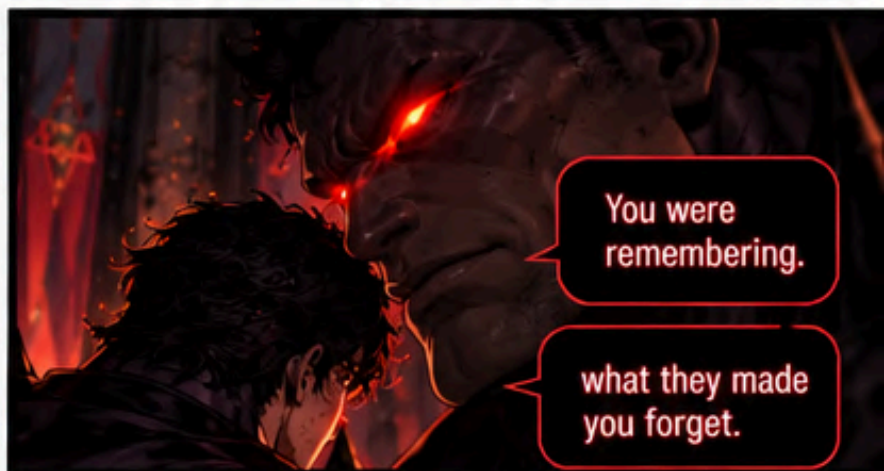

The boy.

...How do you know about that?

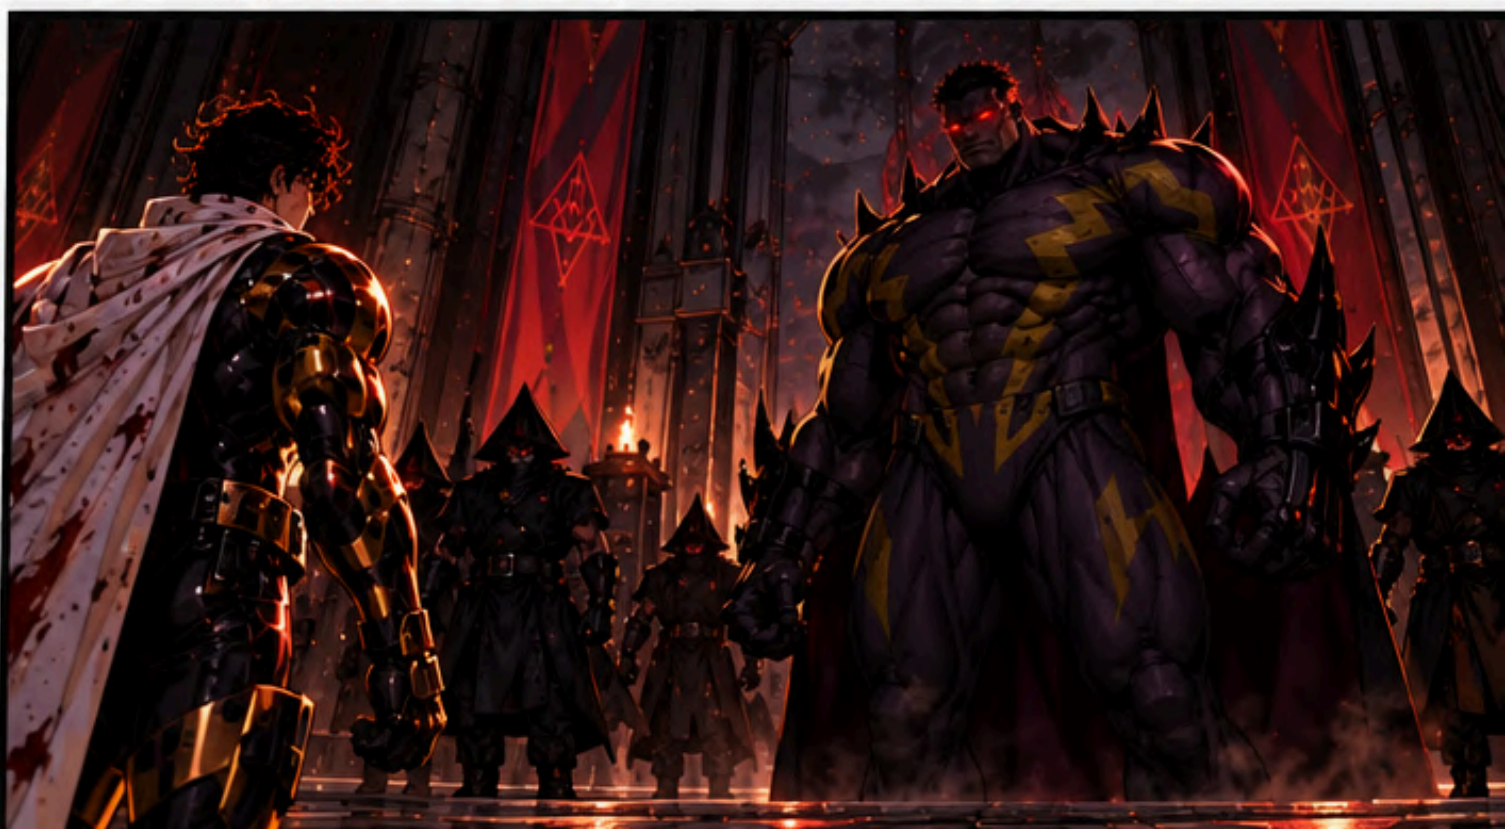

Because you weren't dreaming.

You were remembering.

what they made you forget.

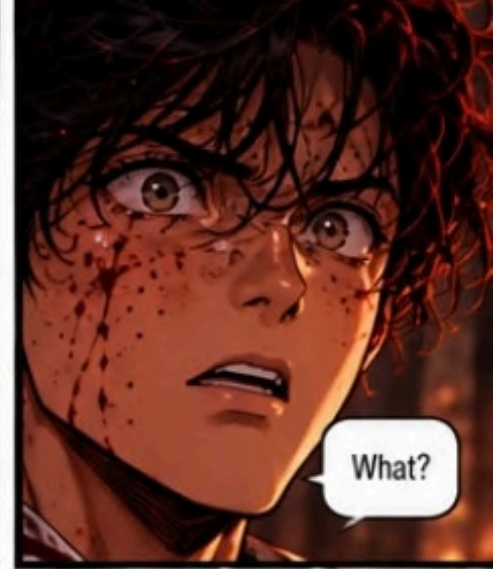

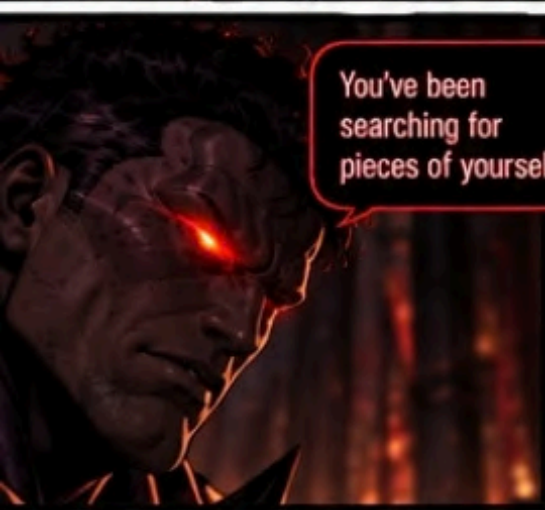

The boy you see wearing the green shirt...

...was me.

What?

You've been searching for pieces of yourself.

Your dreams.

Are your memories.

Your name.

And you've been standing in front of the answer this entire time.

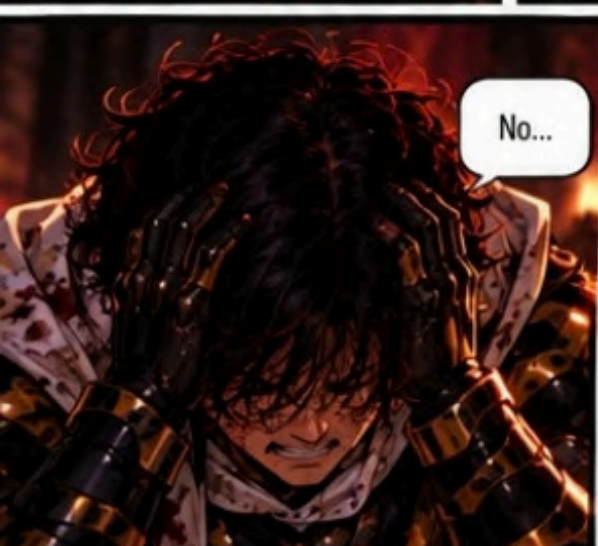

You are Jon.

My brother.

No.

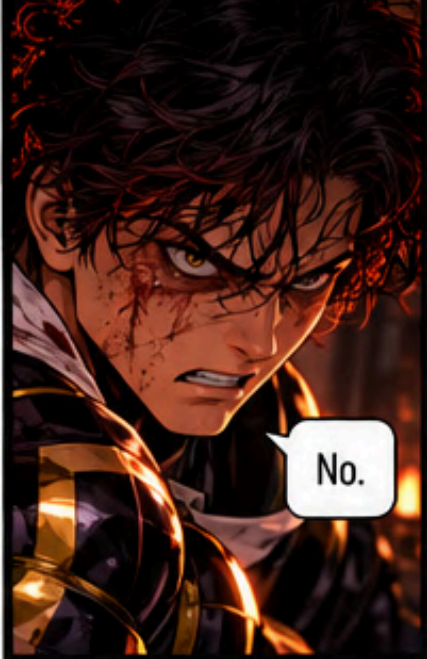

No...

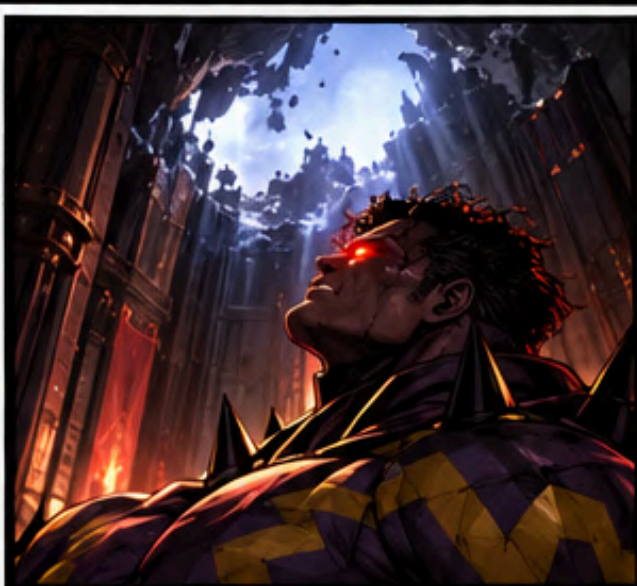

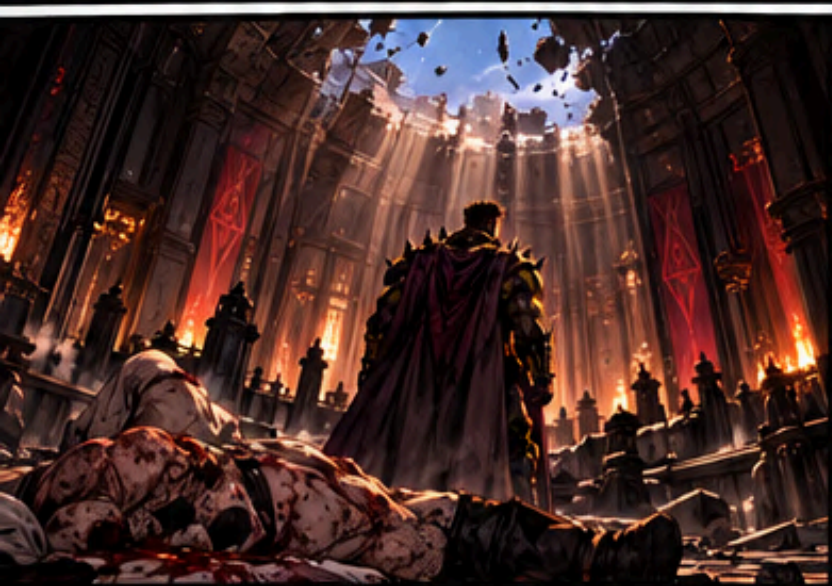

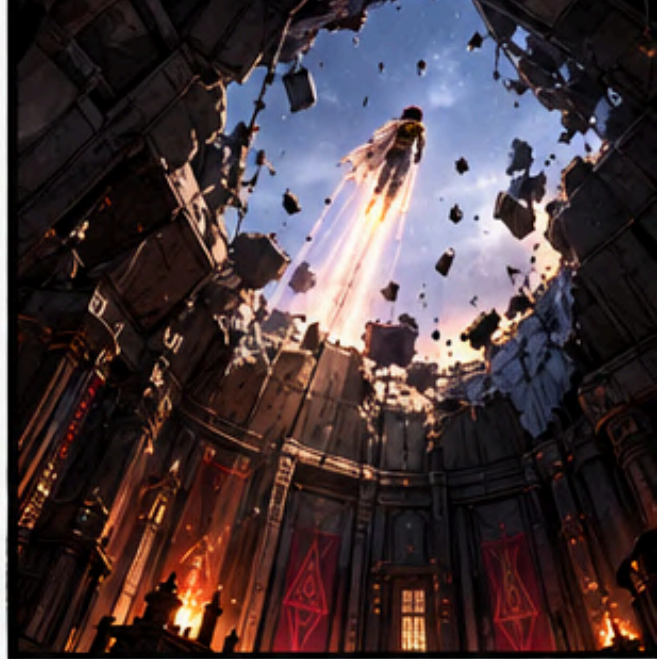

You don't have to believe me tonight.

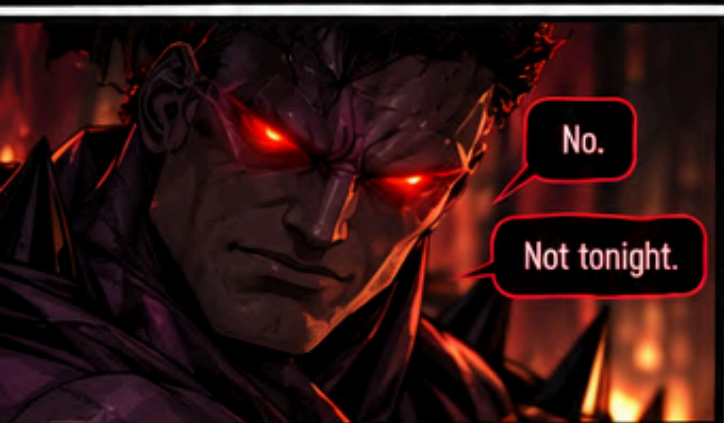

No.

BOOOOOM!

Do you think he'll accept it?

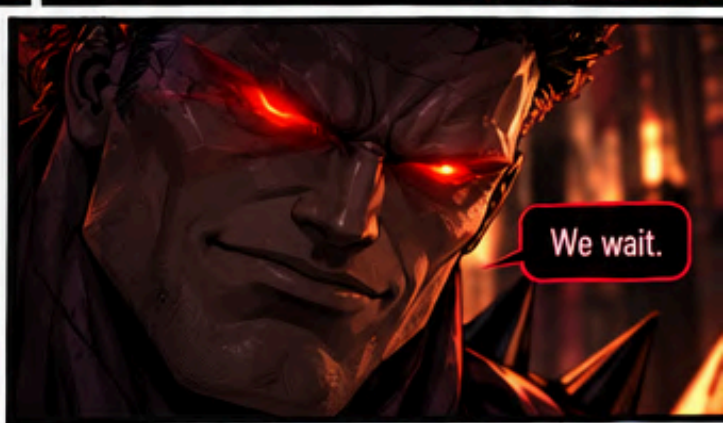

No.

Not tonight.

Then what do we do now, Master?

We wait.

A truth doesn't need to be believed immediately.

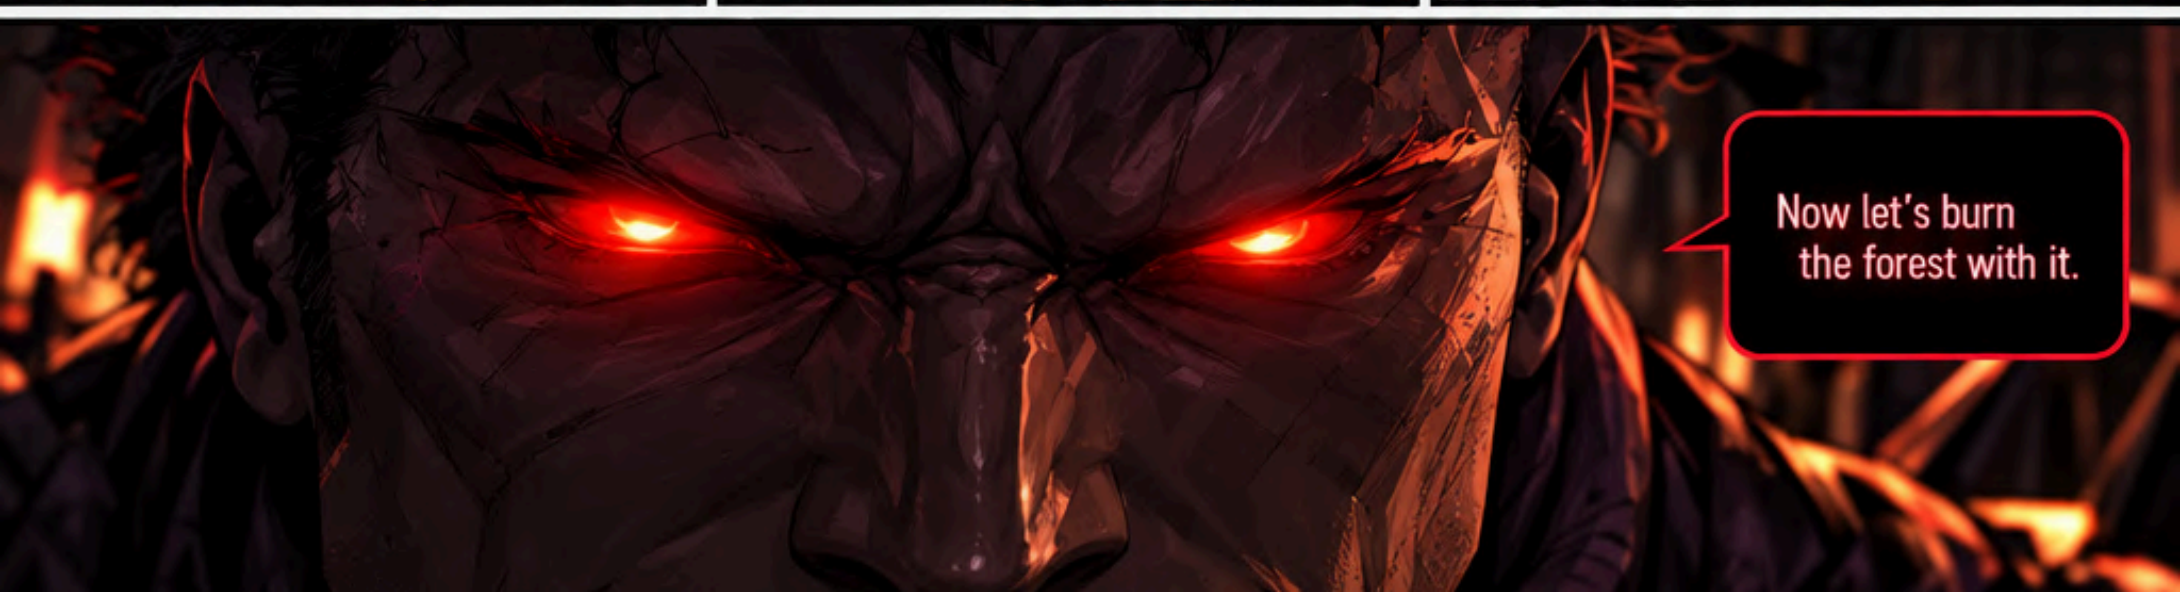

It only needs to stay in someone's head.

And my work?

You've done enough.

I ignited something.

Now let's burn the forest with it.
