EPISODE-3

MGen83'

What I'm about to show you came from a restricted room beneath our own headquarters.

I found these reports in an archive that was locked from us.

They weren't isolated experiments. They were part of something that continued for decades.

MGen83' — TECHNICAL FORMULATION REPORT

Genetic alteration.

Host instability.

Successful induction.

Wait. Genetic alteration?

You're telling me somebody was trying to change human biology?

Can we trust her?

You can trust her.

Not somebody. An entire research operation.

Different formulations. Different subjects. Decades of failures, adjustments and further testing.

1927

1944

1988

2000

Host compatibitity remains below acceptable parameters.

Biological response inconsistent.

Further modification of precursor compound recommended.

Most of their earlier attempts were unstable. The subjects didn't respond consistently.

Subjects.

That's how they referred to people?

That's how the reports referred to them.

If this research went back that far, then the Syndicate's public history can't possibly tell the whole story.

MGen83' — FORMULATION SUMMARY

First documented formulation demonstrating reproducible genetic alteration in selected test subjects under controlled conditions.

Long-term stability remains under evaluation.

Further refinement required.

[redacted]

They actually succeeded.

They achieved a repeatable result. We don't know that exactly.

And you found this beneath our headquarters?

Yes.

In a room that nobody apparently wanted you to find.

Kat, that's not an answer.

I know.

One of the reports contained a reference to a later application of MGen83'. A subject whose results were described as unusually stable.

Later application?

The details were incomplete. But there was enough to establish that the formulation didn't remain an abandoned experiment.

Queen... is there something else?

MGen83' — SUBJECT REPORT

Dosage calibration: carefully balanced.

Subject response: exceptional.

Recorded outcome: highest successful result within the project.

The report describes a subject who received a carefully balanced dose of MGen83'. The results were the best the project had recorded.

You think that subject was me.

I think the evidence points towards you.

All this time, I thought the laboratory was where my life began.

What if it was where somebody decided what my life was supposed to be?

Alpha, a report can't tell you what kind of person you are.

No. But it might tell me why I exist.

How many of them were created this way?

I don't know about that.

But you believe there are many?

The records suggest that many mutants were produced through experiments involving these formulations. I haven't found enough evidence to explain every case.

And you didn't know any of this?

No.

You're one of the founders of the Guardians Syndicate, Kat.

I know who I am, Alpha.

Do you?

I thought I knew what this organisation stood for. I believed in what we built.

Now I'm not sure how much of it I ever truly understood.

If the organisation was hiding this from you, what else have they hidden?

That's what I intend to find out.

And if I was their best result...

Was I ever created for a good cause? Or was I just the weapon that finally worked?

We know nothing about this yet.

I need to see that room. Let me see what are the other things they hid from us.

They already started doubting on me, Alpha. We can't go there further.

Then what gonna do?

I know where we can actually do our investigation.

WAKE UP!
It's already time!

How many times do I have to repeat myself? You're always late for work!

WAKE UP! WAKE UP!

Mmm... just five more minutes...

FIVE MINUTES? YOU SAID THAT YESTERDAY!

I don't wanna go...

Get ready! Fast! Fast!

CLANG!

WHOOOSH!

CLANG!

I DON'T LIKE TO WORK, MOM!

THEN WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO? SIT HERE DOING NOTHING UNTIL WE ALL DIE OF HUNGER?

Get out and earn something, or get ready to freeze to death this winter!

Fine... I'm going.

And don't come back empty-handed!

Welcome to Dark City.

Oh, right.
I haven't introduced myself.

That's my mother, Shasa.
She's trying to raise me and my little brother all by herself.

No husband. No help.
Just her, two troublesome kids, and a city that couldn't care less whether we survive.

And apparently.
I'm one of those troublesome kids.

That's my old school.
Or at least, what used to be my school.

CHAOS SYNDICATE TRAINING CENTER

Now it's just another training centre for the Chaos Syndicate.

Funny, isn't it?
They don't have enough money to teach us properly, but they always have enough money to train us for them.

I'm almost sixteen, by the way. Still school-aged, technically.

But around here, being a kid doesn't mean you get to be one.

Everyone's busy surviving. Find work. Earn money. Buy food. Pay the Syndicate.

Repeat until you die.

GIVE ME YOUR FUCKING MONEY, OR DIE HERE ALONE!

Next time, I won't ask.

And that's our daily life.

Corruption. Harassment. Abuse. Theft. Murders happening here and there.

You stop reacting after a while. Not because it's okay...

...but because reacting doesn't change anything.

And that's the border.

Not close enough to touch. Close enough to remind you it's there.

People talk about Ashton all the time.

They say it's beautiful. Peaceful. A wonderful city where people help each other and live their lives without worrying about whether they'll have food tomorrow.

Sounds like a fairy tale, honestly.

The people here are powerful. Some could probably lift trucks, tear down buildings, or survive things that would kill anyone else.

And they're still struggling to afford dinner.

Whatever we earn, the Syndicate takes its share.

Sometimes I wonder whether we work to live...

...or just to keep them living comfortably.

That's where the people in charge sit. The Chaos Syndicate.

The ones who claim this is the safest and most powerful place on the planet.

And honestly? I used to believe them.

I never really thought about escaping this shithole. Never even imagined living anywhere else.

I thought we were lucky. Powerful mutants, protected by the strongest organisation in the world.

Yeah. I was an idiot.

Until I saw him.

Alpha.

ONE MONTH AGO.
DARK CITY.

One month ago, Alpha Void entered Dark City.

The weapons they'd spent decades building couldn't stop him.

He just came in.
Like it was nothing.

He went straight into the council hall.
Right into the heart of the organisation everyone here is terrified of.

And he did it alone.

LATER.

And then he left.

Just like that.

People said nobody could enter this city and leave alive.

But he did.

That's when I realised something.

Maybe there's more to the world than Dark City and the people controlling it.

Maybe everything they told us about being the strongest, being the safest...

...was just another way to keep us here.

Peey say Alpha's the strongest person on the planet.

Stronger than everyone in Ashton, too.

I've heard he's even stronger than our Master.

Some people even say he's more powerful than our Master himself.

Bossmode.

Most people here hate him.

They say we're trapped because of him. That if Alpha weren't protecting Ashton, maybe we'd get to see the city ourselves.

But who's going to let a place like this into a city like Ashton?

And why would Alpha abandon the people he's protecting just to make our lives easier?

I don't know what the truth is.

But I want to find out.

I want to get out of here. See Ashton for myself.

And if I ever get the chance...

...I want to meet Alpha Void. Just once. I want to tell him how much he inspired me.

SMACK!

WHAT THE HELL ARE YOU STARING AT, FUCKER?

GET IN THERE AND START CARRYING THE WATER! YOU'RE ALREADY LATE!

And there goes my dream.

So this is me.
And this is us.

INT. DARK CITY
SMALL INDUSTRIAL WORKSHOP

DON'T JUST STAND THERE! GET MOVING!

Yeah, yeah...

Late again? Abal, you need to work properly if you want to earn money, man.

Good morning to you, too.

I'm serious!

And I'm seriously tired.

That's Isan Synopsis.

My best friend. The biggest nerd in this entire town.

I CAN HEAR YOU, YOU KNOW!

Seriously, If there were an award for talking too much about things nobody here has ever seen, he'd win it every year.

I'm just saying, if you saved a little more money, you could—

Buy a new backpack? Fix the roof? Get food for the week?

I was going to say buy a map.

A map?

Of the world outside Dark City!

Did I mention he's a nerd?

SIX YEARS AGO.
DARK CITY.

Abal! Abal! Look what I got!

What is it?

Something from outside!

My uncle brought this back! He went to Ashton for his mission, and he gave it to me!

THIS IS WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE!

That's... real?

Of course it's real!

The ocean is actually that blue?

Apparently, even bluer!

I didn't know the world could look like this.

There's so much more outside these walls, Abal. Cities, forests, beaches... places we don't even know exist.

SNATCH!

Hey! Give that back!

What's all this excitement about?

Too many colours.

WHAT?!

Honestly, I prefer our city over this.
You haven't even been there!
And I don't need to!
Abal? Are you listening?
ABAL!
Huh?! What?
Ohhh.
What?
Nothing. Absolutely nothing.
BACK TO THE PRESENT.
THUD!
What are you staring at, Abal?
Before Father comes over and hits you on the head, go drop that bucket properly!
N-no! I wasn't staring at anything!
Then why are you standing there like your brain stopped working?
I was... thinking.
That's dangerous. You should stop.
And that's Mafalda.
We call her Muffy.
She's my...
My... my...
She's my good friend.
THWACK!
FIRE FIST
BOOOM!
THWACK!
THWACK!
BOOM
She's also a very good fighter.
Probably the strongest person I know.
She's helped me out of trouble more times than I can count. Back in school, out here, everywhere.
If someone gives me trouble, she's usually the reason they regret it.
But there's one thing about Muffy I can't stand.
She wants to join the Chaos Syndicate.
She actually thinks they'll let her in.
CHAOS SYNDICATE

POWER BUILDS A STRONGER DARK CITY

CHAOS SYNDICATE
STRENGTH EARNS YOUR PLACE.
She thinks they're looking for the strongest people.
She doesn't understand how they work.
They don't choose people because they're strong.
They choose people they're willing to sacrifice.
That's how I lost my father.
And that's one thing I'll never forgive the Syndicate for.
What? Why are you staring at me like I'm some human from Ashton?
THUD!
No! No, nothing like that!
Then what is it?
I was just looking at your strength! You're practising really hard.
You'll succeed one day. You'll see.
You really think so?
You really
Of course!
I know you're bluffing.
But if I get selected... you're the first guy I'm going to hug.
I'm not—
Now stop daydreaming and finish your work!
I think my heart just stopped.
Nope. Still alive. Unfortunately, so is my stupidity.
She wants to become one of them so badly.
I wish she could see what I see.
One day, I'll cross that border.
With my family. With Isan. With Muffy...
I'll show them what the world beyond those walls really looks like.
I don't know how I'll do it yet.
CHAOS SYNDICATE
But I'm not going to spend my entire life here.

Several minutes later.

SECTOR-17
ASHTON ADVANCED
RESEARCH LABORATORY

I still can't believe we're walking straight into a research facility after discovering evidence of a hidden chemical programme.

Would you prefer we knock first and ask whether they're hiding anything?

When you put it like that, no.

We're here to review the archived compound records for a cross-departmental research assessment.

SECURITY

Your department didn't notifiy us about a visit.

We were told the relevant records were available on-site. If there's been a scheduling error, we can contact the research coordinator.

This place is active. Whatever they're researching, they haven't stopped.

Research archive is on the lower level. You'll need an authorised staff member to access the restricted sections.

Of course. Thank you.

Please tell me you have a plan for the restricted sections.

We're going to find the information first. Then we"'l decide how much trouble we're in.

That's a terrible plan.

And yet, you're following it.

This isn't just an archive entry. They're generating the compound right now.

Excuse me. What are you three doing in this section?

We're researchers from Headquarters. We've been assigned to review the MGen83' production process.

You were expecting us, weren't you?

Yes. I was supposed to escort the inspection team to the chemical section.

The active production facility is on this level. Five researchers are currently supervising the synthesis process.

Let's see what they're actually doing before we make assumptions.

These are the researchers from Headquarters. They've come to inspect the production process.

Understood. You're welcome to examine the facility. Please don't interfere with the active machinery.

You may look around wherever you need to.

Is that the chemical?

How long has this facility been operating?

I don't know.

How many batches have they produced?

I don't know that either.

That's becoming a familiar answer.

...

The production records should tell us what they're making and what it's being used for.

Come on. Show me something.

If these reports correspond to the mutants we've encountered...
Then the mutants weren't simply appearing.
They were being created.
What we actually seeing here?
This is unbelievable.
The mutants are not natural...
They're created?
...
Kat.
Kat, look at me.
I don't know.
I don't know anything about this, Alpha. I don't even know...
You don't believe me, do you?
After everything we've been through... you think I knew?
Now I can't even believe myself, Kat.
Till now, I thought I was created to bring hope.
I thought whatever happened in that laboratory was the beginning of a life I could make my own.
But now I see this.
What if I'm one of the reasons they kept going? What if my results proved their experiments could work?
What if I'm not just someone they created...
What if I'm the reason they believed they could create an entire generation?
Alpha, listen to me.
What about the mutants who were older than you?
There are plenty of mutants who existed before you.
This can't explain every single person we've ever met.

There has to be something more than this.

I helped build this organisation. I believed I knew what it stood for.

And all this time, something like this could have been happening beneath our feet.

I didn't know anything about my own organisation.

I will find out everything.

Every hidden report. Every decision. Every part of this that somebody thought they could keep from us.

I'm leaving for Nepal.

I need to find out what really happened to me. Where I gained these powers. What I was before I became the person standing here.

If I can discover the truth about my own origins, perhaps it will lead us towards the answers we're missing.

I can't keep searching for answers while pretending I already understand myself.

Are you leaving Ashton?

If I don't even know what I am, how can I find anything around me?

Alpha?

I'm not stopping you, Kat.

Find out everything as soon as possible.

Before we leave, we need to convey this to the team.

They deserve to know what we've found.

No.

This needs to stay between us until we find out everything.

We don't know who responsible, how far this goes, or who else might be involved.

We can't walk into headquarters with half the truth and expect everything to be fine.

All right. Until we know more.

If I am there perfect outcome then who I am before this? Why do they chosen me?

I'll make arrangements to leave for Nepal as soon as possible.

Keep me informed.

I will.

ONCOLOGY
INTENSIVE CARE
PATIENT ROOMS
The infection is under control in most of them. But the cancer patients are a different story. Some have been fighting for months.
Months of treatment, and they're still here fighting.
That's what medicine does, Leo. It gives people another chance. Sometimes, that's all we can offer.
And sometimes, another chance is all someone needs.
You sound like you've spent a lot of time thinking about that.

We need Mitraphylline. Immediately!
Sir... we don't have it here. We need to request the supply from the US government first.
Then request it! She's fought cancer for so many months. She shouldn't die here because we don't have one medicine!
Sir, we don't have that much time.
68
86
Keep the oxygen running! Give her the alternative medication. Stabilise her breathing until the supply arrives!
Sir...
We can't do anything, sir.
Not again...
Sorry to interrupt... Do you know the formula for Mitraphylline?
What?
I can research the formula.
If you know what goes into it, I can try to create it myself.
Stay with us, ma'am. I'll try to do something.
Doctor?
Here! The molecular formula is $C_{21}H_{24}N_2O_4$.
Mitraphylline
$C_{21}H_{24}N_2O_4$
Okay...
You can do it, Leo.

Is it possible?

Uncaria tomentosa!

Hydrochloric acid— and ammonium hydroxide!

Hey, man! This is yours, right?
Then why are you walking away?
I know what it is.
Are you doing something suspicious?

Why would I be walking away from you?

Just give me my purse.

You could've taken it two seconds ago.

And yet we're still talking.
